WEATHER INDICATIONS.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau,
Toledo, O., June 10.

There is a storm of great magnitude central over the middle Rocky Mountain region, which is remarkable on account of the absence of rainfall. This storm has a northeasterly trend and though it has not been accompanied by rains in the west it will certainly cause them over the lakes during the next 36 hours.

There is a storm central off the middle Atlantic coast which has evidently moved from the West Indies and curved to the eastward before reaching this country.

The weather over the northern half of the country is generally cloudy, and over the southern half fair.

The temperature has risen slightly or reamained stationary over the entire country except in the extreme northeastern portion, where it has fallen about 10 degrees.

Rains during the past 24 hours have been local and very light except at Buffalo, where 2.42 inches fell, and at New York, .62; Norfolk, .98, and Key West 1.08 inches.

Forecast for Toledo and vicinity for 36 hours—Fair followed by rain to-night; warmer.

A feeling of dullness, languor, and depression means that your liver isn't doing its part. That means impure blood, to begin with, and all kinds of ailments in the end. But you can stop them in advance. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood, and rouses every organ into healthy action. It prevents and cures all diseases arising from a torpid liver or from impure blood. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Scrofulous, Skin and Scalp Diseases—even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula), in its earlier stages, all yield to it.

The makers of the "Discovery" claim for it only what it will do. They guarantee that it will do it. If it fails to benefit or cure, in any case, they'll return the money. Nothing else that claims to purify the blood is sold in this way; which proves, no matter what dealers may offer, that nothing else can be "just as good."

ARE AT IT AGAIN

Fourth Day of the Republican Convention.

Blaine Men Will Not Give Up the Fight.

They Will Stretch Every Point for Delay,

In the Hope of Getting a Third Candidate.

Interesting Details of the Great Scramble Among the Office Holders to Hang on to Their Jobs.

Minneapolis, June 10.—(Special)—Until last night the convention strength of the administration was discounted by the shrewdest workers of the republican party.

It is now plainly seen that the organized force of the office-holders was too much for Quay, Platt and Clarkson to successfully resist.

It was Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, a splendid speaker, who told the convention in a fiery speech at the night session, that 200 office-holders were there sitting as delegates in the convention, and that their influence was felt against the choice of the republicans, meaning Mr. Blaine.

This rugged statement impressed the vast audience as it had not before realized the actual situation.

It was a magnificent battle that was fought in Minneapolis last night. The pickets were all called in and the skirmish line was abandoned.

It was a resounding clash of arms from start to finish.

The heavy field batteries were brought into service early in the engagemnt, and the hot shell and solid shot that was fired with telling precision, made a spectacle of political warfare that was intensely interesting to witness.

The fatality to one side or other could not be avoided.

The culmination of all the climaxes of a stirring week, beginning with Blaine's withdrawal, towered grandly to the irresistible potentiality of the office-holder, organized to cut and slash and tear whenever the form of traitors to the administration flag appeared.

Back and forth swayed the mighty forces for four hours.

There were giants in the fray, and the forensic generalship of the commanders added dash and glory to the battle royal.

Depew, Spooner, Washburn, Miller, Filley, Quay, Fassett, Mahone, Kellogg, Wolcott and others, made charge after charge, and not until the supreme moment was it certain which side had scored a victory that must be acknowledged final.

Never before in a national convention had the clash for supremacy been so long avoided, seemingly so feared, a condition so uncertain of results as this one—the summoning of all the command for a settlement of the main question.

It was a sight not soon to be forgotten by those who were fortunate enough to be present.

Until last night not a test vote had been taken in convention; nothing more than commonplace motions had been made; never an opportunity for the chairman to indicate upon which side he naturally leaned, so artfully had he guarded the deliberations of the convention.

The convention had been blocked 36 hours because of the inability of the credentials committee to settle the controversies in the "Wicked South," that dark and bloody ground where democratic shotguns made less disturbance than the reckless riot of black and white politicians, who plot and plan for party pie at national republican conventions.

It was known that the report of the committee must precipitate a row and develope the relative strength of the factions and it did. It was a mighty struggle, stubborn and bitter, replete with crimination and recrimination.

Things were said more vehement and cutting than the speakers could have applied if their opponent had been another political party.

At one stage a disgusted delegate, possessed of persuasive speech and a voice that arose above the din of the crowd, adjured his fellows to cease saying those things which only the enemy might be expected to utilize.

The bottle was uncorked and gall effervesced. It was magnificently vituperative, and disaster and destruction followed in the wake.

At 1 o'clock in the morning the flag of the administration floated triumphantly over the field, a lively bloody field, and the Platts and Quays and Clarksons and Kelloggs, and the hosts of hitherto successful fat fryers for Benjamin Harrison retreated from the battle.

The contests were all settled as the majority determined in advance. Gov. Foraker read the unexplainable and inconsistent platform of resolutions and the convention adjourned for a few hours' rest.

Demoralization followed and the dark horses were off the race course in a jiffy, ringboned and badly spavined.

Napoleon McKinley, was taken to the stable to be seen no more for four years.

An occasional Wolverine yelled for Alger, but it sounded like the creaking of a burnt district pinery in a December blow.

It was too dismal for this occasion.

The beautiful lithographs which the Ohio delegates had so bountifully provided were quietly rolled up and sent back to Columbus on the first train.

The Blaine brass bands played a dirge to the sullen roar of Stanthony's fall, and the Eau Claire linen-dustered infants rolled over in the gutter for a snooze of forgetfulness.

Geo. Cox was disgusted and even the call from the gallery for Fire Alarm Foraker, when matches were lighted, after the convention and lamps were suddenly extinguished, elicited no response.

The administration won.

But Benjamin rejoices as he may. His secretary was rebuked, but what a spectacle.

The president of the United States, after the adoption of every bad principle to which the republican party is pledged, was obliged to invoke the powerful machinery of the office-holders to simply be renominated himself.

The exercise of such authority, and the intensely bitter row of the week, must impress the country with the weakness of the republican candidate, and of the helplessness of the republican cause this year.

Blaine might have been defeated in November; Harrison is already beaten by the defection of those of his own party who elected him in 1888, by methods which will appear to plague the whole party this summer, and which, like Banquo's ghost, will not down.

THEY WERE HAPPY.

The Harrison Men Made it a Night of Joy.

Minneapolis, June 10.—Nothing could exceed the jubilancy of the Harrison men when the convention adjourned at 1:30 this morning. They felt so good that they did not want to go to bed. They were swarming the corridor of the West hotel at 4 o'clock, shouting and shaking hands hilariously. They had no doubt from the test vote taken on the report of the committee on credentials that they had control of the convention, and they had little fear of losing it. They were counting on not only holding the strength which they had shown last night, but on gaining more through the moral effect of the vote. The anti-Harrisons were beaten. They admitted that the result of the vote took their favorite candidate, Blaine, out of the race, and even Mr. Duffield, the gentleman who was to present the name of Gen. Alger, was willing to admit the possibility that the name of Michigan's favorite son would not be heard in the convention.

The Michigan men did not hold together on the test vote, and he realized that they would not hold on the first ballot.

But in common with the other anti-Harrison men, he had not given up hope entirely. There was still the chance of a dark horse.

"McKinley" was the name to charm the Harrison men from their allegiance. The name of the Ohio man was heard on every side.

The Blaine men were keeping up their courage and the courage of their friends by insisting that the roll call was not a test of the strength between Harrison and Blaine.

Congressman Townsend, of the Colorado delegation, said the 15 votes from Michigan, for instance, in favor of the majority report, would not be for Harrison, since that state would be solidly for Alger.

Senator Teller said: "It seems that Harrison is beaten. He has not got enough votes to nominate him. With the third candidate his majority will melt away fast. Look out for McKinley or Tom Reed. The Harrison men have not got the votes that they claimed they had."

Ex-United States Marshal Payne, of New York, said:

"The southern people are clannish, and because they are clannish they got together on the vote last evening, but the Blaine people are by no means defeated or disheartened. Most certainly Blaine will be nominated to-day. One thing is certain, and that is that Harrison will not be nominated, for he would not take the nomination, anyway, after such a bitter fight. There is a possibility of a dark horse, but the Blaine men are not defeated."

Senator Sabin, a Blaine man, was reminded that Senator Washburn had acknowledged defeat, and he said: "I am sorry to hear that the senator would weaken so quickly."

Congressman Boutelle, Mr. Blaine's intimate friend, said: "We will break that all right."

One of the morning papers publishes an interview with Emmons Blaine, had after the Harrison caucus of yesterday, but before last night's ballot: "They are making a good deal of noise about that meeting," said Mr. Blaine, referring to the Market hall meeting of Harrison people, "but I do not pay any attention to the claims that a majority of the delegates were there."

The reporter mentioned that a good many people had expressed the opinion that Mr. Blaine's name would not be presented to the convention, and the son replied:

"My father's name will go before the convention. People who contend to the contrary know nothing about the thing."

Senator Washburn said the result of the ballot on the credentials report was strongly indicative of Harrison's renomination.

"I think my preference is pretty well known," he said, "but I say with all candor that the vote seems to assure the renomination of Harrison."

The senator's bias has been very pronounced for Blaine, so his conclusion bears additional weight.

John Dwight, Mr. Fassett's colleague from the Twenty-eighth New York district, wore a very sober face, but said he did not regard the battle as lost yet by any means, and he had money to put up against Harrison's nomination.

Senator Spooner was delighted. He said: "I do not feel any better now than I did before. I have been entirely satisfied of victory all along."

After the adjournment this morning ex-Gov. Foraker, who has been selected to present Mr. Blaine's name, said he was ready to make a nominating speech and he was going to make it.

There are a great many friends of Mr. Blaine, however, who think Gov. Foraker is mistaken.

They feel quite positive that Mr. Blaine is not going to allow his name to be put up only to be knocked down again, and they think Emmons Blaine's statement was made in the belief that his father had a clear majority in the convention.

Mr. Platt, and others of the anti-Harrison men, have assured him constantly of this and he has believed it.

Many of Mr. Blaine's friends believe that young Mr. Blaine will not permit his father's name to go before the convention while there is even a doubt about his nomination.

TOLD IN THE BULLETINS.

Short Bits of Gossip Which Chronicle the Events.

Minneapolis, June 10.—Bulletin, 11:26—The Blaine people are conferring regarding the advisability of presenting his name. Many favor simply voting for him without formal nomination. No reply has been received to the dispatch sent him at 3 this morning asking for expression of his views.

12:27—The nomination will probably be postponed for another day. The anti-Harrison men announce this morning that their policy is still one of delay and that they will filibuster on the credentials committee report to carry the convention over to an evening session. The Michigan delegation is now conferring on a proposition to withdraw the name of Alger. It is understood that this will be done. The Harrison men hope to break up the filibustering under Tom Reed's rules, with which Chairman McKinley is thoroughly familiar and a lively session is promised.

11:30 a. m.—One-fourth of the delegates are in their seats and the galleries are packed to suffocation. The Blaine program is for all day session and a fight against everything proposed by the administration element.

11:25—At a caucus of the Kings county, (N. Y.) delegation and Harrison supporters agreed to push the name of Whitelaw Reid for the second place on the ticket.

11:35—Convention called to order.

11:51—Duffield, of Michigan, asks unanimous consent for his delegation to withdraw for 15 minutes. It is stated that his purpose is to swing the delegation solidly against Harrison.

12:10—Ex-Gov. Foraker says he will cast the 46 votes of Ohio for McKinley on the first ballot.

12:10—Two seats were given to delegates from Alaska and Indian territory, each first time in national convention.

12:11—News that Ohio goes for McKinley is scattering over the hall and there is great excitement among the Harrison delegates.

12:12—Col. Duffield gives this as the result of the Michigan delegation: Gen. Alger's name will not be presented and the delegation will vote 22 for McKinley and 6 for Harrison.

12:13—Mr. Platt says that he knows nothing of the way the vote will go on the first ballot except that New York will vote 44 for Blaine and 28 for Harrison.

12:14—The speeches nominating Harrison will be made in the following order: Hon. C. M. Depew, Hon. R. W. Thompson, Indiana; Hon. H. P. Cheatham, North Carolina; Hon. J. C. Spooner, Wisconsin; Hon. E. S. Pillsbury, California; Hon. George S. Gorham, Pennsylvania; Hon. L. E. McComas, Maryland; Hon. William O. Bradley, Kentucy.

12:15—Chairman Crapo says the Massachusetts delegation is not in the McKinley movement.

11:35—Called to order.

11:50—Utah contests settled.

11:51—Foraker says he will make no speech.

11:52—Blaine's name will not be presented.

12:52—Both Harrison and Blaine's names presented.

Bulletin—12:17—The regular order for the presentation of candidates is announced and the call of the roll of the states begins amid great enthusiasm. Colorado is the first state to respond and Senator Wolcott ascends the platform to nominate James G. Blaine.

Bulletin—12:35—When Indiana is reached Hon. W. R. Thompson ascends the stage to nominate Benjamin Harrison.

Bulletin—12:36—Thompson says he does not propose to make a speech but to make a nomination which will strike a chord in the public heart. With these simple words of preface I nominate the wise statesman Benjamin Harrison. (Tremendous demonstration).

12:37—The demonstration for Harrison by far exceeds that for Blaine. Fred Douglas, with a cane in his hand, from the platform, leads the applause.

12:38—Eustace, of Minnesota, seconds Blaine.

12:52—Blaine cheered to the echo. Mrs. James F. Clarkson rises in front gallery, waves her parasol, shouts "Blaine," and the cheering becomes of the greatest of the convention.

12:53—Mrs. Clarkson's action has set the convention aflame, now been cheering for four minutes.

12:54—She raises white parasol and again the cheering breaks out.

12:56—Still cheering for Blaine and Mrs. Clarkson.

12:56 p. m.—Mrs. Clarkson starts "Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine," keeping time with parasol.

12:57 p. m.—Mrs. Clarkson declines a proffered glass of water, saying, "I'm not hoarse." Still cheering now, seven minutes.

12:57 p. m.—Mr. Clarkson sits stoically in his seat. Band starts, and cheers.

Mrs. Clarkson's beauty and nerve have caught the convention delegates, and galleries joining in demonstration.

12:58 p. m.—Wolcott raises black umbrella and the cheering continues; now 12 minutes.

1 p. m.—Convention now started in unison yelling "Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine." Band playing.

1:05 p. m.—Cheering now 17 minutes. Mrs. Clarkson sits down.

1:07 p. m.—Flags still waving, umbrellas up and cheering still the name of Blaine. It is a great tribute to the Plumed Knight.

1:08 p. m.—Mrs. Clarkson is presented with a floral star in which is a picture of Blaine, cheers renewed.

1:09 p. m.— Tom Reed looks on smilingly. He sits near Mrs. Clarkson.

1:10 p. m.—Chairman taps for order, but cheers still going on twenty-one minutes now.

2:04—Harrison cheered 20 minutes.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW,

The Great Talker of the East, Names Harrison.

Mr. President, and gentlement of the convention:

It is the peculiarity of republican national conventions that each one of them has a distinct and interesting history. We are here to meet conditions and solve problems which make this gathering not only no exception to the rule, but substantially a new departure.

That there should be strong convictitions and their earnest expression as to preferences and policies is characteristic of the right of individual judgment which is the fundamental principle of republicanism. There have been occasions when the result was so sure that the delegates could freely indulge in the charming privilege of favoritism and of friendship. But the situation which now confronts us demands the exercise of dispassionate judgment and our best thought and experience. We cannot venture on uncertain ground or encounter obstacles placed in the pathway of success by ourselves. The democratic party is now divided, but the hope of the possession of power once more will make it in the final battle more aggressive, determined and unscrupulous than ever. It starts with 15 states secure without an effort, by processes which are a travesty upon popular government, and if continued long enough will paralyze institutions founded upon popular suffrage. It has to win four more states in a fair fight, states which in the vocabulary of politics are denominated doubtful. The republican party must appeal to the conscience and the judgment of the individual voter in every state in the union. This is in accordance with the principles upon which it was founded and the objects for which it contends. It has accepted this issue before and fought it out with an extraordinay continuance of success. The conditions of republican victory from 1860 to 1880 were created by Abraham Lincoln and Ulysses S. Grant. They were, that the saved republic should be run by its saviours; they were the emancipation of the slaves, the reconstruction of the states, the reception of those who had fought to destroy the republic back into the fold, without penalties or punishments, and to an equal share with those who had fought and saved the nation, in the solemn obligations and inestimable privileges of American citizenship. They were the embodiment into the constitution of the principles for which two millions of men had fought and a half million had died. They were the restoration of public credit, the resumption of specie payments and the prosperous condition of solvent business.

For twenty-five years there were names with which to conjure, and events fresh in the public mind which were eloquent with popular enthusiasm. It needed little else than a recital of the glorious story of its heroes, and a statement of the achievements of the republican party to retain the confidence of the people. But from the desire for change which is characteristic of free governments there came a reversal, there came a check to the progress of the republican party and four years of democratic administration. These four years largely relegated to the realms of history, past issues, and brought us face to face with what democracy, its professions and its practices mean to-day. The great names which adorned the roll of republican statesmen and soldiers are still potent and popular. The great measures of the republican party are still the best of the history of the century. The unequalled and unexampled story of republicanism in its promises and in its achievements stands unique in the record of parties in governments which are free. But we live in practical times, facing practical issues which affect the business, the wages, the labor and the prosperity of to-day. The campaign will be won or lost, not upon the bad record of James K. Polk, or of Franklin Pierce, or of James Buchanan—not upon the good record of Lincoln or of Grant, or of Arthur, or of Hayes, or of Garfield. It will be won or lost upon the policy, foreign and domestic, the industrial measures and the administrative acts of the administration of Benjamin Harrison. Whoever receives the nomination of this convention will run upon the judgment of the people as to whether they have been more prosperous and happy, whether the country has been in a better condition at home, and stood more honorably abroad under these last four years of Harrison, and republican administration, than during the preceding four years of Cleveland and democratic government.

Not since Thomas Jefferson has any administration been called upon to face, and solve so many, or such difficult problems as these which have been exigent in our conditions. No administration since the organization of the government has met difficulties better or more to the satisfaction of the American people.

Chile has been taught that, no matter how small the antagonist, no community can with safety insult the flag or murder American sailors.

Germany and England have learned in Samoa that the United States has become one of the powers of the world, and no matter how mighty the adversary, at every sacrifice, American honor will be maintained. The Bering sea question, which was the insurmountable obstacle in the diplomacy of Cleveland and of Bayard, has been settled upon a basis which sustains the American position until arbitration shall have determined our right.

The dollar of the country has been placed and kept in standard of commercial nations, and a coin has been agreed upon with foreign governments, which, by making bimetalism the policy of all nations, may successfully solve all our financial problems.

The tariff tinkered with, and trifled with, to the serious disturbance of trade, and disaster to business since the days of Washington, has been courageously embodied into a code—a code which has preserved the principle of the protection of American industries. To it has been added a benificent policy, supplemented by beneficent treaties, and wise diplomacy, which has opened to our farmers and manufacturers the markets of other countries. The navy has been builded upon lines which will protect American citizens and American interests and the American flag all over the world. The public debt has been reduced. The maturing bonds have been paid off. The public credit has been maintained. The burdens of taxation have been lightened. Two hundred millions of currency have been added to the people's money without disturbance of the exchange.

Unexampled prosperity has crowned wise laws and their wise administration. The main question which divides us is, to whom does the credit of all this belong? Orators may stand upon this platform more able and more eloquent than I who will paint in more brilliant colors, but they cannot put in more earnest thought the affection and admiration of republicans for our distinguished secretary of state. I yield to no republican, no matter from which state he is, in admiration and respect for John Sherman, for Gov. McKinley, for Thomas B. Reed, for Iowa's great son, for the favorites of Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. But when I am told that the credit for the brilliant diplomacy of this administration belongs exclusively to the secretary of state, for the administration of its finances to the secretary of the treasury, for the construction of its ships to the secretary of the navy, for the introduction of American pork in Europe to the secretary of agriculture, for the settlement so far as it is settled of the currency question to Senator John Sherman, for the formulation of the tariff laws to Gov. McKinley for the removal of the restrictions placed by foreign nations upon the introduction of American pork to our ministers at Paris and Berlin, I am tempted to seriously inquire, who during the last four years has been president of the United States, anyhow.

Caesar, when he wrote those commentaries, which were the history of the conquests of Europe under his leadership, modestly took the position of Aeneas when he said, "they are the narrative of events, the whole of which I saw, and the part of which I was."

Gen. Thomas, as the rock of Chickamauga, occupies a place in our history, with Leonidas among the Greeks, except that he succeeded where Leonidas failed. The fight of Joe Hooker above the clouds was the poetry of battle. The resistless rush of Sheridan and his steed down the Valley of Shenandoah is the epoch of our civil war. The march of Sherman, from Atlanta to the sea, is the supreme triumph of gallantry and strategy. It detracts nothing from the splendor of the fame, or the merits of the deeds of his lieutenants, to say that having selected them with marvelous sagacity and discretion, Grant still remained the supreme commander of the national army.

All the proposed acts of any administration, before they are formulated, are passed upon in cabinet council and the measures and suggestions of the ablest secretaries would have failed with a lesser president; but for the great good of the country, and the benefit of the republican party, they have succeeded, because of the suggestive mind, the indomitable courage, the intelligent appreciation of situations and the grand magnanimity of Benjamin Harrison. It is an undisputed fact that during the few months when both the secretary of state and the secretary of the treasury were ill, the president personally assumed the duties of the state and the treasury department, and both with equal success. The secretary of state, in accepting his portfolio, under President Garfield, wrote: "Your administration must be made brilliantly successful, and strong in the confidence and pride of the people, not at all diverting its energies for re-election, and yet compelling that result by the logic of events and by the imperious necessities of the situation."

Garfield fell before the bullet of the assassin and Mr. Blaine retired to private life. Gen. Harrison invited him to take up that unfinished diplomatic career, where its threads had been so tragically broken. He entered the cabinet. He resumed his work, and has won a higher place in our history. The prophecy he made for Garfield has been superbly fulfilled by President Harrison. In the language of Mr. Blaine, "The president has compelled a re-election by the logic of events, and the imperious necessities of the situation."

The man who is nominated here to-day, to win, must carry a certain well-known number of the doubtful states. Patrick Henry in the convention which started rolling the ball of the independence of the colonies from Great Britain said: "I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided and that is the lamp of experience. I know of no way of judging of the future but by the past."

New York was carried in 1880 by Gen. Garfield, and in every importnat election since that time we have done our best. We have put forward our ablest, our most popular, our most brilliant leaders for governor, and state officers, to suffer constant defeat. The only light which illumines the sun of hope, the dark record of those 12 years, is the fact that in 1888 the state of New York was triumphantly carried by President Harrison. He carried it then as a gallant soldier, a wise senator, a statesman who inspired confidence by his public utterances in daily speeches from the commencement of the canvass to its close. He still has all these claims, and in addition, an administration beyond criticism, and rich with the elements of popularity with which to carry New York again.

Ancestry helps in the old world, and handicaps in the new. There is but one distinguished example of a son of the first overcoming the limitations imposed by the preeminent fame of his father, and then rising above it, and that was when the younger Pitt became greater than Chatham.

With an ancestor a signer of the declaration of independence, and another, who saved the northwest from savagery, and gave it to civilization and empire, and who was also president of the United States, a poor and unknown lawyer of Indiana has risen by his unaided efforts to such distinction as lawyer, orator, soldier, statesman and president that he reflects more credit upon his ancestors than they have developed upon him, and presents in American history, the parallel of the younger Pitt.

By the grand record of a wise and popular administration, by the strength gained in frequent contact with the people, in wonderfully versatile and felicitous speech, by the claims of a pure life in public, and in the simplicity of a typical American home, I nominate Benjamin Harrison.

THE FOURTH DAY.

It Opened in Minneapolis With a Blizzard.

Minneapolis, June 10.—The fourth day of the convention opened with a miniature Dakota blizzard. It lacked some of the most unpleasant features. It was not cold and it was not accompanied by snow or hail—but it was lively enough to tear from their places the decorations which adorned the buildings along Minneapolis principal streets.

The rain fell in torrents for a time, but the storm was of short duration and the sky soon cleared. The streets were comparatively deserted when the storm broke. The shouters and the marching clubs worn with th exertions of last night, did not put in their usual early appearance, and the voice of he bugle and the sound of the drum were not heard in the land.

At 10 o'clock, an hour before the convention was to meet, not a band had appeared on the streets and there was but a small crowd turning toward the hall.

It was evident that the convention would be late assembling.

At 11:37 the convention was called to order.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Wayland Hoyt, of the First Baptist church, of Minneapolis.

Senator Warner Miller, who retired "outside the breastworks" when the lights went out at midnight, was early in his seat this morning. Mr. Hiscock was too fatigued to rise during the prayer; he was the only delegate who remained seated.

David Martin was announced as national committeeman for Pennsylvania; R. G. Evans from Kentucky, and David J. Layton from Delaware.

Consideration of the committee on credentials being resumed, the chair made the gratifying announcement to the convention that Senator Quay had authorized him to say that no further opposition would be made to the adoption of the majority report in the Alabama case.

The question was then put and the majority report was unanimously adopted, amid cheers.

This example was followed by those who had inteded to antagonize the Utah report on the Mormon issue. Mr. Cullom after consultation with other friends of the administration agreed not to delay nominations by raising a discussion on this question.

A motion to refer to the committee was made, but Chairman Coggswell, of the committee, got the platform and said that his committee was ready to report. Then on motion two delegates each from Indian territory and Alaska were admitted.

Mr. Duffield, of Michigan, asked that the Michigan delegation be allowed to retire for consultation.

Mr. Miller asked that the officers of the Women's Republican association named in the communication be presented to the convention and this was done.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, one of the ladies wearing a watered silk dress, a black and gold toque, and with a bunch of roses at her corsage, was escorted to the platform, and read an address in shrill but audible voice with many oratorical gestures.

The lady orator, as she warmed up with her subject, laid aside her notes and addressing the convention with a fluency which elicited frequent applause.

At the close of her address the "owl" delegation of last night set up a plaintiff hoot which raised a laugh.

The chairman announcing the request said that this would not interfere with the presentation of names for presidential nomination.

There was applause, but Mr. Duffield stopped it by addresing the chair again and stating that the Michigan delegation desired that that business be suspended until the delegation returned.

The chairman heard no objection to this request, the Michigan delegation retired and the convention proceeded to the transaction of some routine business.

An excited delegate of South Carolina on behalf of the 725,000 republicans of Oaklahoma demanded that the six delegates elected from that territory be accorded their seats in the convention. His demand passed unheeded. The chair, announcing it was very necessary to have the list of members of the national committee filled up, directed the clerk to call over the roll of states. Those which had not yet made selections were Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina and Utah. In the interim the convention waited, while the Michigan delegation decided the momentous question as to whether or not Alger's name should be presented as a candidate, there was cries for Ingalls for a speech, but the chair recognized Warner Miller, of New York, who sent up to the desk, and had read a woman's suffrage memorial.

One of the Alabama delegation admitting with shame and humiliation that there was a fight in the delegation, asked for a poll on the question of the election of a national committeeman and was proceeding to wash the soiled linen of the delegation in public, but the chairman cut him off by saying, amid much laughter, that the convention accorded the Alabama delegation "further time to correct their arithmetic."

Presenting the Candidates.

A resolution was offered with the request that it b eread. There was objection.

Then the chairman impressively announced that the next order of business was the presentation of names for the nomination for president.

A mighty cheer went up.

The chair announced that it had been the custom in past years to call the roll for the presentation of candidates. He asked whther the convention wished this. There were mingled cries of "Yes" and "No," and the chairman decided that the convention desired to follow precedent, ordered the roll called.

When Colorado was reached, Senator Wolcott rose and said;

Mr. Chairman. There were loud cries of platform, and the silver senator ascended the stage, and said:

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention: The republicans of the west sometimes differ with the republicans of the east as to what is wanted, but on this occasion there is remarkable unanimity between genuine republicans of the west and genuine republicans of the east as to whom we need and his name is Blaine.

The dramatic presentation of the name of Blaine, so unexpected, so decisive, took the convention by surprise. There was dead silence for a moment. Then the Blaine men broke loose and for three minutes the hall rang with cheers renewed again and again. They stood up waving hats and handkerchiefs and fans.

When partial silence had at length been restored, Mr. Wolcott continued, "the greatest American now living suffered defeat eight years ago because the party which he led and honored was torn up by discord and because fraud triumphed. (Cheers).

"We meet to right that wrong: (cheers) to present our uncrowned leader the pledge of our unswerving devotion and the assurances of victory in November—(the rest of the sentence was drowned in a burst of uncontrollable applause).

Mr. Wolcott resumed: "It is to us a matter of comparative indifference who shall be chosen to lead the democratic hosts, but we trust they will again nominate their prophet of tariff reform in order that we may demonstrate how short a life has slander and calumny, and so that a repentant country may repair the wrong of 1884 and that we may stamp with the seal of final disapproval the policy which uwold bring us into dishonor and contempt abroad."

"The best gifts of this world are not to those who seek them," said he, and the Blaine men cheered.

Mr. Blaine, he continued, was every man's candidate but his own. He sought everything for his country and not for himself. The record of his service for his country assured his acceptance of any burden his country would impose upon him.

The fears about his health were groundless. His friends would wish him young, impetuous again, but experience came only with age. He still stood to those who loved him the embodiment of all that was brightest and best of American statesmanship.

THEY SEE THEIR FATE.

Blaine Men Will Do Anything to Defeat Harrison.

New York, June 10.—A dispatch to the Herald from Minneapolis credits general republican leaders with saying last night:

"We believe that Blaine cannot be nominated. We also believe that Harrison cannot be beaten."

The correspondent, in support of the statement, gives the contents of a dispatch shown him in confidence, which is as follows:

"To Senator John Sherman, Washington:—Indications unmistakably that no other candidate can be nominated."

The name is withheld, but the telegram emanates from a "Blaine leader, who has been at the front of the fight for the 'plumed knight.'"

The dispatch contained more than above given, but the few words tell the story of the unexpected abandonment of Blaine and the rounding into power of Harrison, and that the anti-administration men are willing to join with others on a dark horse since they feel they cannot defeat Harrison by nominating Blaine.

They are moved far more by their animosity to Harrison than their fealty to Blaine. Still some of the Blaine leaders do not yet despair of being able to win. Blaine is yet a candidate. He may or may not be put in nomination, but he will be balloted for, and a large number of delegates will stand around his banner several ballots. Perhaps they can pull him through, for they are desperate campaigners, winners of a score of victories.

FIRST HORSE WAS ON JIM.

Proceedings of the First Night Session.

The Office Holders Rally to the President,

And Vote Down the Combined Opposition.

Chauncey M. Depew Made a Good Leader.

The Platform Read to the Convention by Governor Foraker and Greeted With Cheers.

Minneapolis, June 10.—Just before the hour of meeting of the first night session the report was circulated that the Harrison managers were discussing the advisability of forcing a ballot at to-night's session. The reports of the committee on credentials and resolutions were known to be prepared ready for presentation, and as it was not expected there would be any prolonged discussions over these reports, the proposition to force a ballot seemed perfectly feasible. Besides, the Harrison people felt that the meeting of the afternoon demonstrated their superiority over the Blaine forces, and there seemed a slight inclination to force a test vote either on a formal ballot, or some preliminary question. As there has been several lively discussions in the committee on credentials over which certain southern contested delegations should be seated, it was known an opportunity could be had at any time to force a test of strength by merely moving to seat one of the rival contesting delegations.

The Harrison forces were silent as to the course they intended to pursue, and in response to inquiries merely stated that they did not know whether the convention would reach a ballot last night or not. They intimated, however, that so much of the convention's time had been consumed by the committee on credentials that it might be found expedient and advisable to proceed with the least possible delay to the election of the presidential and vice-presidential candidates. In that event, they insinuated that it might be deemed best to dispense in a great measure with all the long nominating and seconding speeches which had been prepared, limiting these merely to a chief nomination speech and to seconding speeches of a minute each, and then proceeding to the great decisive ballot.

Up to the last moment the same uncertainty was manifested as to the intentions of the Blaine managers regarding the presentation of Mr. Blaine. Some thought it would be better not to present him formally to the convention, and although the eloquent ex-Governor Foraker, of Ohio, had been detailed to this duty, it was stated that both he and Mr. Platt were inclined to the belief that it would be wiser not to formally present Mr. Blaine to the convention at all.

In the event of this decision being adhered to, it was obvious that if the Harrison people decided to restrict their nominating and seconding speeches, a ballot could be reached within a couple of hours after the opening of the session.

When the condition of affairs became known the deepest interest was manifested by both the galleries and the delegates as to the uncertainty of the proceedings, and every phase of the session was watched with breathless interest.

At 8:30, a half hour after the hour of meeting, the convention had not yet been called to order. Every seat in the great auditorium appeared now to be occupied, and as some enterprising advertiser had distributed fans to every individual in the vast audience, a magnificent sight was presented by the 12,000 fans waving in time to the music of the band. All this time the most inspiring airs known to martial music had been played by the band in its flag-draped nest near the roof.

At this juncture Chairman Coggswell, of the credentials committee, made his appearance on the platform, and, at this signal that the most important committee of the organization had concluded its labors, the convention burst into wild applause.

At 8:52 p. m. the thump of Chairman McKinley's gavel intimated that order was desired, which was necessary for the dispatch of business. Fans suspended their motion for a moment, and the great crowd gave its attention to the presiding officer.

"The convention will please be in order," said he, emphasizing his command with further thumps.

When the convention was in order Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, rose in his place and was received with applause. He said: "I rise to a question of privilege; not high privilege, but pleasant privilege. We have present here among our number a delegate who has been a delegate to every national convention of the republican party since its organization, who has voted for every president of the United States for the last 60 years, who has served with distinction in congress and in the cabinet of the president of the United States, who is to-day 83 years of age, in full activity and in full possession of his faculties; and while England claims so much for Mr. Gladstone because at 82 he is strong and vigorous, America claims more for Col. Dick Thompson, of Indiana, who is 83. (Cheers.)

"Col. Thompson is 83 years old to-day. I move, sir, that the congratulations of this convention be extended to Col. Thompson on his 83d birthday, with the hope that he will round his century, attending during the convening period every national convention of the republican party." (Cheers.)

The motion of Mr. Depew was seconded by C. P. Griffin and carried unanimously, and Col. Thompson was escorted to the platform by Mr. Depew and Hon. C. A. Dawes, of Missouri.

When he reached the platform and faced the convention, Col. Thompson was received with a great outburst of cheers and made a speech which was well received.

While rare old "Dick" Thompson was addressing the convention there sat within a few feet of him the most conspicuous man in the Illinois delegation at the moment, almost the exact counterpart of him—"Dick" Ogelsby, the famous many-time republican governor and senator of the prairie state. Ogelsby's face was a study of delight, his hale, ruddy, smiling countenance and shining white hair making a remarkable combination in connection with the precisely similarly radiant visage of Thompson.

The resolution admitting members of the G. A. R. to any seats in the convention unoccupied 30 minutes after the opening of the convention was adopted.

An Appeal for Assistance.

The clerk then read the following message:

Titusville, Pa., June 8.—Col. J. J. Carter, T. B. Simpson, delegates Pennsylvania delegation: Our citizens earnestly request you to notify the people of the country through public announcement before the convention, of the terrible loss of life and porperty and consequent suffering among our people from the recent flood and fire here and at Oil City. The proceedings of the convention have absorbed the attention of the country and filled the newspapers to the exclusion of full accounts of our disaster, which will not be realized unless more directly brought to the notice of the public in this way; thus preventing subscriptions to the relief fund now absolutely necessary to prevent additional suffering and death.

Make known the effect of our loss and assure the convention that every dollar of relief furnished will be honestly and faithfully distributed by competent and faithful citizens, among the sufferers.

E. O. Emerson, Mayor Titusville,
W. G. Hunt, Mayor Oil City.

THE BUSINESS COMMENCED

The Convention Reported on Contested Seats.

The Chairman—"The regular order is the report of the committee on credentials, and I recognize the chairman, Gen. Coggswell, of Massachusetts.

Gen. Coggswell—"The committee on credentials closed its hearing at 8 o'clock tonight. There has been no time to make a written report. Notice has been given to the majority that a minority report might be expected in regard to some of the contested cases. No time has there been for the minority to submit their views in writing. The majority, if the convention is so minded, is prepared to report verbally its action, and awaits the direction, Mr. President, of the convention.

Mr. Wallace—"On behalf of the minority, I desire to present a partial report. As the gentleman from Massachusetts has already said, we have so recently adjourned that it has been impossible to obtain the minutes from which to complete this report for the information of this convention, but as a partial report from the minority of the committee, I desire to submit the following report." (Mr. Wallace handed to the secretary his written report.)

The Chairman—"The report of the committee will be received and submitted to the convention after the report of the majority shall have been made. The gentleman from Massachusetts, chairman of the committee on credentials, states to the convention that he is not prepared with a written report at this time, but will proceed with a verbal report. If there is no objection he will proceed. The chair does not hear any objection."

Mr. Lockwood (Idaho)—"Mr. Chairman, do I understand there are to be two reports?"

The Chairman—"Yes, sir."

Mr. Lockwood wanted to know if the majority were ready to report. The chairman said: "The chairman of the committee on credentials states he is ready to make a report on behalf of the majority, but he has not had time to put that report in writing. Mr. Wallace, of New York, the representative of the minority, states that he has a partial report which he has sent to the clerk's desk, to be submitted after the chairman shall have made his report.

The Majority Report.

Gen. Coggswell: "Mr. President, the committee on credentials has considered the list of the uncontested delegates, and has heard parties in 24 different contested cases. It recommends that the uncontested lists submitted by the national committee to the temporary organization be accepted as the list of duly accredited delegates and alternates except in the cases hereafter mentioned.

Second—In the matter of contest in the Eighth Alabama district your committee decides for the sitting members, and recommends that they retain their seats. The same report is made as to the contest in the Third Alabama district. The same report is submitted in regard to the Fourth Alabama district.

As to the contest for delegates-at-large from Alabama your committee recommends that the contestants, Messrs. Noble, Smith, Dorsett and McEwan be given seats.

In the Fifth Alabama contest your committee finds in favor of the sitting members and recommends that they retain their seats.

In the contest of the Ninth Alabama district the committee recommends that the contestants, Hews and Matthews, be seated.

As to the contest from the state of Kentucky, your committee recommends that the contestants, Messrs. Matthews and Winstell, be given seats.

As to the contest in Louisiana as to delegates-at-large, your committee finds in favor of the sitting members. As to the contest in the First Louisiana district, your committee finds for the contestants, Messrs. Booth and Lewis, and recommends they be seated. As to the contest in the Second Louisiana district, your committee finds for the sitting members. The same finding in the Fourth Louisiana district. In the Sixth Louisiana district your committee find for members Donato and Brean, the contestants, and recommends they be given seats.

In the Fourth district of Maryland the committee recommends that the contestants, Messrs. Supple and Cummings, be seated.

In the contest in Mississippi of the delegates-at-large, the committee recommends, as does the national committee, that the regular delegates and contestants both be seated, with the rights of half a vote each. As to the Seventh Mississippi district the committee finds for the sitting members.

As to the contest in South Carolina on delegates-at-large, the committee finds in favor of the sitting members.

In the contest in the Fourth North Carolina district, the committee recommends that Mr. Nichols, the contestant, be seated in place of Mr. Williamson, the sitting member. In the Sixth North Carolina contest the committee finds in favor of the sitting member. In the Seventh North Carolina district the committee recommends that Messrs. Walser, Bailey and Mott be seated, with right to two-thirds vote each.

In the state of Texas in the Sixth district and in all the contests the committee finds in favor of the sitting members.

In the District of Columbia the committee finds in favor of the sitting members.

In the territory of Utah the committee recommends that the sitting members and the contestants, Messrs. Goodwin and Allen Walling, be seated with one-half a vote each. The member of the committee, Mr. Saulsbury, of Utah, desires that I should note his dissent to the action of the committee in this last case. I am authorized to report for the committee, that if the convention shall decide that the Indian territory and Alaska are entitled to seats in this convention that it will be able at any time to report on those who purport to be delegates from those respective territories. All of which is respectfully submitted for a majority of the committee, by its chairman.

THE MINORITY REPORT.

What the Blaine Men Would Like to Have.

Mr. Wallace, of New York, addressed the chair.

The President—Does the gentleman from New York (Mr. Wallace) desire to present a verbal statement, or does he desire that his report shall be read by the secretary from the desk?

Mr. Wallace—That is all the report which I am able to make, the one which I desire the secretary to read from the desk. The secretary read the minority report as follows:

"In the disputed Alabama delegates-at-large and in the Ninth district, considered by your committee on credentials, upon which it could not agree, the minority report as follows:

"That in their opinion the question as to the delegates-at-large in one, largely, if not wholly, of regularity and organization. The state convention was called for April 28, 1892. The state committee was duly called and it met the day prior thereto at Montgomery, Ala., at the office of the collector of internal revenue, at 12 o'clock, noon, of the 12th day of April, 1892, that being the time and place announced by said Moseley to members as the time and place of said committee meeting. The majority of the committee, a quorum being present, according to affidavits of members of said committee, consisted of twenty members. After waiting a reasonable time from an hour and fifteen minutes to an hour and a half, a request was made to the chairman, who was in another room on the same floor of the United States government building, to call the committee to order. This request was made several times. Finally, at about half-past 1 o'clock, Chairman Moseley was again called in and requested to call the committee to order, a majority being present, when he said that he would adjourn to meet at 5 o'clock p. m.

Objection was made as to his right to adjourn, a roll call being demanded of Richard W. Austin, who had his brother's (C. C. Austin's) proxy as a member of the said committee. The chairman replied that it was his private room and he wanted it and that the committee would adjourn until 5 p. m., as above stated by him. Thereupon, on motion, the committee was ready to report for business and proceed to find a place of meeting, for which motion was made, put and carried without a dissenting vote to meet immediately at the Merchants' hotel. There at that time the committee, pursuant to adjournment, a quorum being present in person and by proxy, as shown by the original minutes of said meeting and by affidavits, the secretary was directed to procure and prepare a hall in which to hold the convention, and also named D. M. Long for temporary chairman, John C. Binford for secretary, and John M. George for assistant secretary. The secretary, H. A. Wilson, whose duty it was, and had been, at previous sessions, to procure the hall, upon going to the capitol found it in possession of guards and refused possession. These guards were two United States marshals and two deputy internal revenue collectors who refused admission or possession to him as such secretary. The guards were placed there by Chairman Moseley. Then the secretary, Mr. Wilson, secured the county courthouse, at which place according to the sworn statement, 312 out of 320 legal delegates met on the second day of April at 12 o'clock noon. Had not stated place of meeting in the city. At this convention and under the temporary organization therof as provided by the state committee, the previous day at the Merchants' hotel, the following delegates-at-large: B. M. Long, W. A. Vaughan, Iverson Dawes, and H. S. Carson and alternates Thompson, Boyd, Binford, and Brandall were duly elected and certified and at such convention a new state committee was elected and of which Hon. W. T. Stevens is chairman and H. A. Wilson secretary. Then after performing all its business said convention adjourned sine die.

Therefore, we hereby recommend the placing upon the permanent roll the names of the above delegates and alternates. (Applause.)

In the disputed Alabama case from the Ninth district, your committee on credentials could not agree, the minority thereof beg leave briefly to report that J. W. Hughes and W. H. Barney were elected delegates and Henry Hall and J. O. Diffey alternates to the national convention; that the convention was held at Greensborough in said district, on April 25, 1892, and all the delegates, 34 in number, participated in such convention as shown by the sworn statements of many delegates and others who participated therein.

This convention was held with open doors at the opera house in said city. Of the delegates who participated in said convention 4 were from the county of Blount (and there were no contests) who participated, 14, from Jefferson, 4 from Ribb, 6 from Hale and 6 from Perry county. According to sworn statement the delegates were elected at the call of the county conventions that comprised said district.

Another meeting which was claimed to be a district convention, was also held in said county on the same day in the basement of the colored Methodist church. At this latter meeting R. L. Houston and W. S. Matthews were elected delegates. According to a large number of affidavits, all who participated in that church house meeting claimed to be delegates, but were not properly elected to said convention, but were men who were elected at bolting and pretended county meetings or conventions.

The church meeting was held with closed doors, guarded by doorkeepers, with instructions from the presiding officer to admit no one except upon his orders. Sworn statements show that such presiding officer was not a delegate to the district convention and not a resident of the congressional district, and was neither chairman nor secretary of the district committee. We therefore beg to recommend that the names of James W. Hughes and W. Harney as delegates, and Henry Hall and J. O. Diffey as alternates, be placed upon the permanent roll of the convention. David Lane, J. M. Green, J. F. Seattle, J. J. W. Stewart, A. Gleason, F. B. Brandage, Paul McCormick, Wm. C. Wallace, A. T. Bliss, W. E. Creamer, J. M. Shoun, B. Clark Wheeler, R. C. Dunn, A. E. Smith, F. A. Cage.

Gen. Coggswell—I move you, Mr. Chairman, that the report of the committee be adopted as a whole.

WHAT IT MEANT.

The Majority Report Was a Harrison Victory.

The majority report sustained the national committee as to 23 votes and reversed the national committee as to 17 votes. In Louisiana the national committee was sustained as to 4 delegates at large and 4 district delegates and not sustained as to 4 other district delegates; in Maryland, not sustained in 2 votes; in Mississippi, sustained as to 2 district votes, and was not sustained as to 2 delegates at large (each faction being given a half vote instead of the Hill faction a whole vote); in North Carolina, sustained 3 votes; District of Columbia, sustained 2 votes; Utah, not sustained as to 1 vote, by splitting the delegation between the two factions; Alabama, sustained as to 8 and reversed as to 6 votes. Politically, the result was a gain of 13 votes to Harrison and of 1 vote to Blaine, a net Harrison gain of 12 votes. The gain included 6 votes in Alabama, 4 in Louisiana and 2 in Mississippi. The gain in the votes was made owing to the fact that the Harrison men had won three members of the credentials committee and thereby secured a majority. Approximately Blaine gets 23 votes from the contest in the credentials committee and Harrison 21 votes. This is exclusive of South Carolina and Texas, in which the color line was raised and both the Harrison and Blaine people refused to recognize the contestants. No accurate polls of how these two delegations stand have been made.

The Fight Was On.

Wallace, of New York, announced the purpose to fight the report on the floor as to the votes.

When Chairman Coggswell moved that the majority report be adopted, he was loudly cheered by the Harrison delegates, and when Chauncey I. Filley, of Missouri, moved to substitute the minority report the applause which followed from the Blaine delegates told the galleries that the long expected fight between the Blaine and Harrison forces was on. The chief point in Mr. Filley's argument in behalf of the minority report was that the regular organization of the party in the Alabama case had been barred from their regular place of meeting by United States deputy marshals, but Mr. Massey, of Delaware, maintained that the case had been considered fairly upon its merits, and that the majority report should be adopted.

Knight, of California, spoke warmly in favor of the minority report. He declared that the Moseley faction, recommended by the majority to be seated, had through its federal officers attempted to thwart the will of the people of Alabama. It was enough that the democratic party suppressed the will of the people in the south, without a hundred thousand office-holders thwarting the will of republicans in party convention. He appealed for justice for the loyal republicans of Alabama. (Loud applause).

Intensified interest was lent to Knight's speech by the knowledge among the spectators and delegates that he was to be the first man to second the nomination of Blaine later on. The vigor and eloquence the Californian displayed captured the great audience from the outset, and when he concluded the cheering was tremendous. Chauncey M. Depew, in the New York delegation, looked worried at the demonstration, while down the aisle the Ohioans seemed tickled beyond expression. It was a Blaine moment and a supreme one.

B. H. Bothea, of Illinois, deprecated the attempt to conjure up prejudice against the office-holding class. He made an allusion of a derogatory nature to the people of the section from which the contest came, which, generally speaking, was that you cannot prove anything by them. It was a bad break and a large number of the gallery occupants hissed and some cried "down."

Bothea became rattled at the reception the remark got. Cannon of Illinois fortunately came to his rescue with a point of order, and being recognized, asked if it were in order when the galleries hissed the delegates speaking on the floor to move that the galleries be cleared.

A burst of laughter and look at ex-Speaker Reed followed the bland announcement of Chairman McKinley that it was in order, he believed, under the rules of the Fifty-first congress, which are the rules of the convention.

Cannon announced that he would move that the galleries be cleared if there was more hissing, but he would hardly have taken the job of an assistant sergeant-at-arms and attempted to clear them, for the crowd was excited and intensely interested.

Senator Wolcott of Nevada, in speaking for the minority report, warmly denounced not only the deputy marshals in Alabama, but the hundreds of office-holders who were to-day present in the galleries and in the hall of this convention crowding out the people's delegates in their frantic attempt to renominate the president.

Wolcott's speech was answered by C. B. Hart of West Virginia, who said that he came from a southern state, and yet he was not an office-holder. He came from the state of West Virginia, which had given Cleveland but 500 majority in 1888 and would go republican in 1892. To him it was difficult to conceive how the five of the minority should have more wisdom than 25 of the majority.

The greatest interest was manifested when Col. H. M. Duffield of Detroit, the Alger manager, arose to speak in favor of the minority report. His action was interpreted as meaning that the Alger people were prepared to vote with the Blaine people in the test of strength against the Harrison force. Duffield said that if any man had invited the republicans to meet in convention in the grand jury room that man ought to be invited to step into a grand jury room before a jury of 12 men and be indicted.

The distinguished Powell Clayton of Arkansas, who arose to defend the majority report, said that he had a right to speak because he had never held any office to which he had not been elected by the people of his state. He intimated that perhaps a finer sense of propriety would suggest to the senator from Colorado that he, too, being an office-holder, was throwing mud at office-holders who took an interest in President Harrison's re-election.

"I do not hold office at the appointment of the president of the United States, and I am at Washington, as I am rightly here, to represent my republican constituency," was the response of Senator Wolcott; and his reply was loudly cheered by the Blaine delegates.

Cannon of Utah, in behalf of the "regulars" of Utah, presented a minority report recommending that they be seated and the majority report recommending that their opponents of the liberal party be given a half vote be not accepted. He said he represented the regular party. "If you seat these men," said Cannon, "you seat them on the old issue. They don't know that Brigham Young is dead yet." (Great laughter and applause.)

"Give us our seats and you will encourage a growing party and when our state is admitted we will give you a republican state." (Cheers.)

VICTORY FOR HARRISON.

The Majority Report Went Through With a Whoop.

There was wild applause when Chauncey M. Depew arose to support the majority report, which he did briefly.

Ex-Senator Miller, of New York, spoke for the minority, and as his first point said that he had listened to many reports of committees on credentials, but this was the first time he had ever heard a majority report which gave no reason why it should be adopted except that it was "the" majority report. It had been said that the majority was 44 to 5. This was not so; it was 24 to 23. Was one majority to outweigh everything else? The minority had given reasons, and not one speaker had given any facts to controvert it. The national committee, composed of men who had led the party to victory last year, had, after several days' deliberation, given the four sitting members their seats by 28 to 21, and it should be sustained unless facts were brought to impeach the facts of the minority report, which had not been done. Miller then closed by moving as a parliamentary motion that the Coggswell report be divided and the present vote taken on the Alabama part alone.

At this point Clarkson and Platt held a rapid interchange at Platt's seat. No one who saw it doubted that preparations were in hand for the now evidently close coming of the first real test vote between the Blaine and Harrison forces.

Chairman Coggswell said that, representing a majority of the committee, he had stated to the convention at the beginning that no time had been had to prepare the report. The convention had thought best, nevertheless, to call for an oral report, and now, gentlemen, we are assailing the majority because it had not submitted a formal argument in favor of its report. He concluded by moving the previous question, and immediately the demand for the previous question was seconded by a majority of the delegations of Massachusetts, Delaware and West Virginia.

Senator Quay, rising to a parliamentary question, wanted to know the effect of the previous question—if it would enable them to have a vote on the separate propositions involved in the report.

The chair ruled that Senator Miller having demanded a division of the propositions involved in the Coggswell report, there could be separate votes taken. Both sides were ready for the vote, and a storm of ayes greeted McKinley when he asked if the previous question should be ordered. Before this was done, however, by unanimous consent, the majority report in all cases where there was no minority report was submitted and adopted by acclamation.

An amendment was now made to take a standing vote on the Alabama case, and when the affirmative vote was submitted an apparent majority of the convention arose. Intsantly the New York and Pennsylvania delegations demanded a roll-call, and it was ordered by the convention.

When the result of the call of states was announced a mighty yell greeted the Harrison victory. The figures were called "462 1-2 ayes and 420"— the words were left unfinished, although the actual figures in the negative were 423, the president's friends left the the word "three" unheard in the din.

Canes, hats, handkerchiefs, anything that could be grabbed, were swung wildly in triumph, while the dome seemed to tremble with the terrific roars of applause.

An attempt to adjourn the convention at this interesting juncture failed.

The hour proposed was 10 o'clock a. m., but it was decided by a substantial majority to proceed with the business of the convention without delay. Mr. Depew, the leader of the Harrison forces, was asked if he was satisfied with the test. "Yes," he replied smilingly, "and we will be 25 votes strong on the main question."

Ex-Senator Platt, of New York, said: "I would prefer not to give an opinion until a later ballot is taken."

Chairman Clarkson said: "I cannot tell exactly what its significance is. There were enough absent in Louisiana and one or two of the states to leave Harrison short of a majority when we consider the scattering votes that will be cast for dark horses. I do not give up the fight yet."

The motion to adopt the majority report on the Alabama cases resulted: Ayes, 476; nays, 465.

Ex-Gov. Foraker presented the report of the committee on resolutions and platform, and was loudly cheered. After the reading the convention adjourned till 11 a. m.

THE PLATFORM.

The Document Upon Which the Party Must Stand.

Minneapolis, June 10.—The following is the full text of the platform as completed by the committee on resolutions:

The representatives of the republicans of the United States, assembled in general convention on the shores of the Mississippi river, the everlasting bond of an indestructible republic, whose most glorious chapter of history is the record of the republican party, congratulate their countrymen on the majestic march of the nation under the banners inscribed with the principles of our platform of 1888, vindicated by victory at the polls and prosperity in our fields, workshops and mines, and make the following declaration of principles:

We reaffirm the American doctrine of protection. We call attention to its growth abroad. We maintain that the prosperous condition of our country is largely due to the wise revenue legislation of the republican congress.

We believe that all articles which cannot be produced in the United States, except luxuries, should be admitted free of duty, and that on all imports coming into competition with the products of American labor there should be levied duties equal to the difference between wages abroad and at home.

We assert that the prices of manufactured articles of general consumption have been reduced under the operation of the tariff act of 1890.

We denounce the efforts of the democratic majority of the house of representatives to destroy our tariff laws by piecemeal, as is manifested by their attacks upon wool, lead, and lead ores, the chief products of a number of states, and we ask the people for their judgment thereon.

We point to the success of the republican policy of reciprocity, under which our export trade has vastly increased and new and enlarged markets have been opened for the products of our farms and workshops.

We remind the people of the bitter opposition of the democratic party to this practical business measure, and claim that executed by a republican administration, our present laws will eventually give us control of the trade of the world.

The Silver Question.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with such restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by the legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the government, shall be as good as any other.

We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will secure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

A Free and Fair Ballot.—We demand that every citizen of the United States shall be allowed to cast one free and unrestricted ballot in all public elections, and that such ballot shall be counted and returned as cast; that such laws shall be enacted and enforced as will secure to every citizen, be he rich or poor, native or foreign born, white or black, this sovereign right guaranteed by the constitution. The free and honest popular ballot, the just and equal representation of all the people, as well as their just and equal protection under the laws, are the foundation of our republican institutions, and the party will never relent its efforts until the integrity of the ballot and the purity of elections shall be fully guaranteed and protected in every state.

The Southern Outrages.—We denounce the continued inhuman outrages perpetrated upon American citizens for political reasons in certain southern states of the union.

Foreign Relations.—We favor the extension of our foreign commerce, the restoration of our mercantile marine by home-built ships, and the creation of a navy for the protection of our national interests and the honor of our flag; the maintenance of the most friendly relations with all foreign powers; entangling alliances with none, and the protection of the rights of our fishermen.

We reaffirm our approval of the Monroe doctrine and believe in the achievement of the manifest destiny of the republic in its broadest sense.

We favor the enactment of more stringent laws and relations for the restriction of criminal, pauper and contract immigration.

Miscellaneous.—We favor efficient legislation by congress to protect the life and limbs of employes of transportation companies engaged in carrying on interstate commerce, and recommend legislation by the respective states that will protect employes engaged in state commerce, in mining and manufacturing.

The republican party has always been the champion of the oppressed and recognizes the dignity of manhood, irrespective of faith, color or nationality; it sympathizes with the cause of home rule in Ireland, and protests against the persecution of the Jews in Russia.

The ultimate reliance of free popular government is the intelligence of the people, and maintainance of freedom among men. We therefore declare anew our devotion to liberty of thought and conscience, of speech and press, and approve all agencies and instrumentalities which contribute to the education of the children of the land; but while insisting upon the fullest measure of religious liberty, we are opposed to any union of church and state. We reaffirm our opposition, declared in the republican platform of 1888, to all combinations of capital organized in trusts or otherwise, to control arbitrarily the condition of trade among our citizens. We heartily indorse the action already taken upon this subject and ask for such further legislation as may be required to remedy any defects in existing laws, and to render their enforcement more complete and effective. We approve the policy of extending to towns, villages and rural communities the advantage of free delivery service, now enjoyed by the larger cities of the country, and reaffirm the declaration contained in the republican platform of 1888, pledging the reduction of letter postage to 1 cent, at the earliest possible moment consistent with the maintenance of the postoffice department and the highest class of postal service.

Civil service—We commend the spirit and evidence of reform in the civil service and the wise and consistent enforcement by the republican party of the laws regulating the same.

Nicaragua canal—The construction of the Nicaragua canal is of the highest importance to the American people, but as a measure of national defense and to build up and maintain American commerce and it should be controlled by the United States government.

Territories—We favor the admission of the remaining territories and at the earliest practicable date, having due regard to the interests of the people of the territories and of the United Staes. All federal officers appointed for the territories should be selected from bona-fide residents thereof and the right of self-government should be accorded as far as practicable.

Arid land—We favor cession, subject to the homestead laws, of the arid public lands to the states and territories in which they lie under such congressional restrictions as to disposition, reclamation and occupancy by settlers as will secure the maximum benefits to the people.

The Columbian—The World's Columbian exposition is a great national undertaking and congress should promptly enact such reasonable legislation in aid thereof as will insure a discharging of the expense and obligations incident thereto, and the attainment of results commensurate with the dignity and progress of the nation.

Intemperance—We sympathize with all wise and legitimate efforts to lessen and prevent the evils of intemperance and promote morality.

Pensions—Ever mindful of the services and sacrifices of the men who saved the life of the nation, we pledge anew to the veteran soldiers of the republic a watchful care and recognition of their just claims upon a grateful people.

Harrison's administration—We commend the able, patriotic and thoroughly American administration of President Harrison. Under it the country has enjoyed remarkable prosperity and the dignity and honor of the nation, at home and abroad, have been faithfully maintained and we offer the record of pledges kept as a guarantee of faithful performance in the future.

Notice of Removal.

The Office of the Copeland Institute in Toledo to be Closed July 1st, and the Physicians in Charge to be Removed to Other Offices.

Owing to increased demands upon their time and force in Chicago, Cincinnati and Pittsburg, Dr. Copeland will, on July 1, close the office of the Copeland Institute for a time at least.

The steadily increasing practice in those cities has grown to such dimensions that it requires the personal time and attention of himself and the physicians on his staff in this section, and it is no longer possible for Dr. Bell to remain in this office. Dr. Copeland regrets exceedingly the necessity for making this move, and will possibly return to Toledo soon.

All patients will please take notice of this announcement, that no treatment will be given by the physicians of the Copeland Institute in Toledo after July 1, and such patients after that date as desire to treat with these physicians, may do so by mail through addressing the office of the Copeland Institute at 206 State street, Chicago, or at the Johnston building, Cincinnati, O., or the Arcade, Cleveland, O., or 66 Sixth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

One rounded teaspoonful of Cleveland's Baking Powder does more and better work than a heaping teaspoonful of any other. A large saving on a year's bakings.

BAKING POWDER

A pure cream of tartar powder.

Used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of Cookery.

Cleveland's is the standard, it never varies, it does the most work, the best work and is perfectly wholesome, as it contains no ammonia, no alum, no adulteration.

On June 10th, 1861, was fought the battle of Big Bethel near Yorktown, in which Gen. Butler's forces were defeated and which was marked by the death of Lieutenant Greble, the first U. S. regular army officer killed in the Civil War.

Greble's remains were taken to Philadelphia, where, until their interment, they lay in state in Independence Hall. He was killed by a North Carolina drummer boy.

IT LOOKS QUEER.

Two Fires and a Burglary Reported at One House.

About 1 o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the house, 324 Erie street, occupied by Miss Cannette. The firemen found that there were fires in five different places in the house, and a strong smell of coal oil was distinguishable. From the scattered condition of the flames and the fact that only 24 hours before the house was on fire, the firemen are led to think it was the work of an incendiary. At the police station yesterday it was reported that the house had been entered by burglars. The police investigated but could not find that anything had been taken. The matter will be looked into.

Tickets for the benefit can be secured every day at room 20, in the Drummond block, and reserved seats can be had without extra charge.

WARM WEATHER HAS COME AT LAST.

The Best Season of the Year to Treat Chronic Catarrh.

Understanding that a great number of people have been cured of chronic catarrh by taking Pe-ru-na during the past cold season, yet it cannot be denied that the cold, wet, backward spring has retarded many cures, and in some cases actually prevented a cure. But, after unusual delay, summer has come at last, and now is the time for all catarrh sufferers to begin a systematic course of treatment for this disease. The greatest difficulty in the way of treating chronic catarrh is that the patient is so liable to catch cold during the treatment, and thus delay a cure. This liability at this season of the year is, in a great measure, removed, and no one should neglect the opportunity to be given treatment.

The proper way to begin treatment for chronic catarrh is to take a tablespoonful of Pe-ru-na before each meal and at bedtime. This dose should be increased so that in one month the patient will be taking two tablespoonfuls at each dose; at which time a report of the case by letter should be made to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and he will advise further.

Every patient should have a copy of The Family Physician No. 2, which is a 32-page pamphlet, giving a complete description of the cause, symptoms and cure of chronic catarrh. Sent free to any address.

Miss Lizzie Neukom celebrated her birthday anniversary in fine style last evening. The capacious residence of Mr. Albert Neukom, on Broadway, could not be improved upon for such an event. Forty invitations had been extended, and there were no declinations. The hours of the reception were from 4 to 10 p. m., but it was after midnight before the party broke up. Supper was served at 6 o'clock, after which the entire company repaired to the ball room on the third floor, where the grand march was taken up, and dancing followed for several hours. About 10 o'clock the old folks joined in the festivities, and happiness reigned supreme. The large room was handsomely festooned and decorated with flowers, Chinese lanterns and other devices, and with the elegant costumes of the young ladies, it presented a scene not often witnessed. Miss Neukom was kindly remembered by her numerous friends with many costly presents. The event was one that will long be remembered by all the participants and best wishes were expressed that years of joy and pleasantness may be the lot of Miss Neukom.

We Never Shrink

From our duty to our customers, consequently the clothing we sell never shrinks on our customers. We prefer to leave a man enough room to laugh in his sleeve if he wants to, and as we wish our customers to grow more we would not sell them clothing that grows less. The best material, therefore, is put in our garment. They are made in the best fashions by the best workmen, and if we don't ask the best prices for them it is because we are more anxious for customers than money. We are offering a special reduction on Summer Overcoats of 20 per cent. Our Straw Hat sale is still drawing the crowds, and we still lead in 25 and 50 cent neckwear.

Convention Resolutions.

It's very kind and tender to pass resolutions of sympathy for the oppressed Jews of Russia, but what about our own distressed and poverty-stricken? What about the starving families in the oil regions of rich old Pennsylvania and the fifteen hundred homeless ones in the Mississippi district? And, barring the suddenly distressed by fire and flood, what about the army of toilers in our cities who make shirts for a shilling a dozen and overalls for four cents a pair? What about the laboring men in mills and mines, reported by Commissioner Wright, who, through low wages and lockouts earn even less in a year than like laborers in England? For years past, one-tenth of the number of persons who died in New York city have been buried in the potter's field. Over against this put the New York Tribune's list of millionaires. Is there anything out of joint in this land of "free and equal opportunities?" Is there anybody nearer than the Russians who deserve this overflowing sympathy?

Crow Anyhow.

Dispatches to the Blaine papers read almost like democrat abuse of the president. A special correspondent for such a journal in Toledo says "there are about 200 government employes in Minneapolis, delegates to pack the convention for Harrison." That "Secretaries Foster and Elkins are keeping the wires red-hot with messages to them from headquarters in Washington." In fact, these assertions are taken from "a democratic sheet" which publishes names. What a fine dish of crow these editors will have to stuff down in the event of Harrison's nomination. But it takes a republican to eat crow. This has been amply demonstrated. And the same delicacy is in the menu for the other faction if Blaine shall succeed. And more or less crow if a claquer of either faction shall be chosen.

While the high-taxers are bloviating in convention about "the workingman's tariff," Congressman Crosby, of Massachusetts, is perfecting his list, already produced in the house, of wage reduction since the new tariff law went into operation. A week ago he had forty-nine entries, giving names, dates, locations of the industries involved. The list is far from finished and does not include establishments closed during the period. Twenty-four of these listed are in the iron and steel industries, and thirteen in woolens and worsteds—the most highly protected articles on the McKinley schedule. What does it mean?

If the rumor of Hill's withdrawal from the nominational field is true, the country has cause for rejoicing. If Senator Hill shall do this, he will, in a great measure, redeem himself from storms of adverse criticism. His peculiar politics in some instances will be attributed to his o'ervaulting ambition, and only his good services will be remembered. With the breach in the New York democracy healed, pleasant and easy victory for the party is assured.

It was a graceful compliment to Col. Dick Thompson, of Indiana, to invite him before the assembled convention at Minneapolis because "he is 83 years old to-day and has been a delegate to every republican convention since the party was born." As Col. Thompson is a Hoosier and with Chauncey Depew, who presented him, a Harrison boomer, some persons might have seen politics in it, but it was well-managed, whatever was the motive. A little by-play on the stage at the right time, goes for something.

The Blaine men are in charge of the important committees. If time is needed to "influence" delegates, they will see that it is had. Hence this delay. High old politics in the reform wing of the republican party. Fine spectacle before the country—a squad of delegates for sale to the highest bidder, and action postponed to allow time for the deal. The Harrison brand is on these delegates and if Blaine shall corral them 'twill be a great victory.

Delegate Cannon avows himself a Mormon, but not a polygamist, and believes that the days of polygamy and churchly rule in Utah are forever past. This expression should have no bearing in determining his eligibility. The Mormon religion shorn of its objectionable and unlawful feature is as good as—Col. Ingersoll's religion, for instance. And Ingersoll christened "the plumed knight."

It is hardly correct to say the disaster in the oil regions was unavoidable. One leaky tank, one weak dam, and the carelessness of many persons whose business it is to watch these things, and an unprecedented storm was the combination that precipitated the catastrophe. Innocent persons are the sufferers, and to them we must extend speedy relief.

The New York World made recent significant utterance, the meaning of which may be better understood, if rumor of the possible withdrawal of Hill is not a canard. The World said: "It looks more and more like Cleveland, and if the indications strengthen and he becomes the Chicago nominee, the World will give him as hearty support as it ever gave to a democratic candidate."

Republicans, black and white, from the "dark and bloody ground" of the south seem to be as wicked and unmanageable as the dreadful democrats themselves. Wards of the nation and federal office-holders, too! Verily republicans are ungrateful.

The amount of principle there will be in the silver plank of the Minneapolis platform, concocted through a deal and compromise, is very apparent. Of course it wasn't intended that the "how" of it should leak out, but some man was so tickled over the success of the maneuver, he couldn't keep still.

"A battle of giants," says one. A big noise doesn't always mean a giant behind it. Pigmies sometimes have great mouths and shrill throats—there's Foraker, for instance.

The Meeting To-Night.

A meeting of Toledo's citizens is called for to-night at the Boody house to take action in the matter of a relief fund for the sufferers from fire and flood in the oil regions of Pennsylvania. Toledo's immunity from disasters that have swept other localities should render the city grateful; and the finest expression of gratitude is generosity towards those less fortunate than ourselves. It is a pitiful story of death and desolation that comes to us, and the speedy relief of present need by liberal contributions is all that can be done for relief of afflicted ones. The wrecked homes can never be rebuilt the same, and the bereaved hearts must wear out their sorrow, but sympathy, substantially expressed, lightens the heavy burden. Let the attendance to-night be large and the response liberal, remembering, he gives twice who gives promptly.

If what the Blaine faction charge against the Harrison faction is true, and vice versa, the republican party is corrupt enough to sink of its own weight. And who can dispute this "inside-the-ring" testimony? Truth always springs from the soil of such a battle ground.

The heighth of the ridiculous is reached. The old Adam cry is raised at Minneapolis—"The woman thou gavest to be with me, she did it." The woman is Mrs. Blaine, but Mr. Blaine didn't say the saying. He isn't making any remarks.

Women are becoming disciplined. The suffrage petition presented at Minneapolis is the most logical and concise of all documents of its kind presented on like occasions.

"Striking Italian laborers are making great trouble at Carbondale, Col." Even the imported Italians strike against "protected" wages.

Clarkson is the biggest ingrate of them all. See what a swath he was allowed to cut when Harrison first started in.

Morton, Levi P. Morton, of the Shoreham, and incidentally of the senate chamber, where is he?

Great is the gusher, but if he gush awkwardly, great is the failure thereof. The dire calamity that has overtaken Titusville and Oil City cannot be pictured in too vivid colors, in the attempt to convey to the imagination the full significance of the devastation hat has come upon that region. But some of the effects of correspondents in that direction are so inartistic, so woebegone, that one instinctively cries "don't." For instance: "Women wandering among the ruins of their homes, wearing the weeds of widows," is one stroke too many of the black brush. Women bereft to the extent indicated and half crazed with grief, do not rush off to milinery stores and dressmakers to have "weeds" prepared in which to wander around. Another was "looking longingly into space like a frightened doe." A frightened doe doesn't set and "look longingly into space;" it leaps and bounds away. Please don't do these things, dear, well-meaning correspondents; it's too painful.

It is the combination that kills the significance of he pictorial newspaper. A glance across a page doesn't distinguish the eczema man, the victim of indigestion, the specialty physicians, Lydia Pinkham and the goitre woman, from a half dozen dignified delegates, Mrs. Harrison, and Mrs. Carlton of Wyoming. Usually the first-mentioned are the best pictures, mechanically, not being the work of "our special artist." The reader gets a confused idea of the galaxy of faces, which is a pleasant thought—for advertisers.

New York is going to have a celebration from October 8 to the 13th, inclusive, commemorative of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America. A portion of the state fund appropriated for the world's fair will be requested of the commissioners. Gotham gives up the world's fair business with many heroic struggles.

Blaine, Mrs. Blaine and Gail Hamilton have gone to Bar Harbor. A pretty brainy trio, by the way.

CUSHING BUYS PROPERTY

Two Tracts of 14 Acres Which He Paid $24,500 For.

This Gives Him a Tract of 21 Acres in the Seventh Ward Which Will be Put on the Market.

Once more H. H. Cushing comes to the front, with another large purchase of Toledo property.

To-day Mr. Cushing closed two deals whereby he comes into possession of some valuable property in the Seventh ward.

One tract he bought of C. A. Harley, consisting of seven acres on Detroit avenue, for which he paid $12,500.

The other also embraces seven acres, purchased of L. K. Parks, adjoining the Harley tract, for which he paid $12,000.

Last February Mr. Cushing bought 27 acres of Jerome H. Smith, which is a part of this section of land, for which $15,000 was paid.

This gives Mr. Cushing 21 acres, above Virginia street, on Lawrence avenue, Hollywood avenue, Rosewood avenue and Detroit avenue west of Maplewood avenue.

The property will be platted and placed on the market at once, and affords some desirable sites for residence property.

TEMPERANCE WORKERS.

Upper Sandusky, O., June 10.—The County Woman's Temperance union is holding its annual convention at Carey. The attendance is fair and much interest is manifested.

The reports of the secretary, treasurer, superintendent and delegates were heard this morning and the subject of "Relation of Churches and Saloons" was discussed. Mrs. K. Walters delivered an address on "Things To Be Done."

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Smith delivered an address of welcome and was responded to by Mrs. McConnell.

Reports from different committees were heard and Mrs. Deffenbaugh read a paper on "Mother's Influence."

A lecture was delivered by State President Mrs. Henrietta Monroe, of Xenia.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The republican leaders will have a hard time patching up peace after the row they have worked up. It will be all they can do to save the pieces.—Atlanta Journal.

The coldness between Mr. Blaine and Mr. Harrison, if it were to be distributed over the country, would be disastrous to vegetation and watering places.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

McKinley would like to be president right away, but they tell him at Minneapolis that four year from now his bill "will have demonstrated its usefulness." This is a polite way of saying that it will take the people at least six years to get over their indignation at the outrage of its passage.—St. Louis Republic.

Well, says the Rev. Thomas Dixon, of New York, "we must teach patriotism in our public schools. We must teach them the history of America. It is a task for Catholic and Protestant, Jew and Gentile, to work out shoulder to shoulder, heart to heart." That's the right kind of talk. The greater the quantity of our patriotism, the better the quality of our politics.—Washington Post.

English capitalists have become interested in the project of a ship railway through Canada from Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay, a distance of only 66 miles, and the work may be completed before the beginning of the twentieth century. Such an undertaking, if successful, would revolutionize all the methods and conditions of transportations from the northwest to the seaboard.—Philadelphia Record.

Interesting Republican comment touching the nomination of Mr. Blaine: "If he becomes the nominee it is highly important that the candidate for vice-president be a man capable every way for filling the presidential office." Which is to say, we must have Blaine but it will doubtless kill him. Many a young woman has married an old man in that conviction and been fooled.—Kansas City Star.

HILL TO WITHDRAW

He Has Seen That He Is Not Wanted,

And Will Refuse to be a Candidate.

With This State of Affairs Made Public,

Cleveland Will be the Democratic Nominee.

Chairman Murphy Now Has the Letter Locked Up in His Safe Ready to Spring at the Proper Time.

New York, June 10.—The Times this morning publishes the following special from Troy:

There is in existence a letter signed by Senator David B. Hill, authorizing the withdrawal of his name from all further consideration by the democratic state and national convention whenever in the opinion and discretion of Richard Croker, Hugh McLaughlin and Edward Murphy, jr., and W. F. Sheehan, such a step should be taken.

That letter is in this city at this moment. It is in the safe of Edward Murphy, jr., chairman of the democratic state committee.

There will be hasty and perhaps angry denials of the above statements, but they are based upon information which the Times has taken pains to verify and which is believed to be absolutely reliable.

The letter was brought to New York by Lieut. Gov. Wm. F. Sheehan on Sunady night from Washington, in the same pocket in which Mr. Sheehan also brought the resolution, a part of which only was adopted at the delegates' meeting on Monday night last.

The knowledge of the letter was supposed to be confined to Messrs. Murphy, Sheehan, Croker and McLaughlin.

The letter throws a good deal of light on the Monday night meeting of the delegates. It fits in exactly with the resolution that was adopted—to vote for Hill until he was nominated or "until he withdraws his name."

COUNCIL COMMITTEES

Listen to Citizens on Various Matters,

But Do Not Pass on Much Business—What Was Done at Last Night's Meeting.

A few council committees met last evening and indulged in much confusing talk and listened to a large number of kickers, but the business transacted was not of either large amount or consequence.

A large delegation of property owners on Nebraska avenue, headed by Attorney Pilliod, appeared before the street committee and asked that the legislation for the paving of this street between Elizabeth street to Junction avenue be rescinded and that new legislation be prepared, making the two blocks between Hawley and Hoag streets a separate improvement, in order that the property in these blocks might get the full benefit of the double street car track. After some discussion the petition was acceded to.

Mr. M. J. Malone appeared before the committee and started an opening wedge for competition in asphalt paving, a monopoly that has heretofore been enjoyed by the Warren-Scharf company alone. He asked that the word "Trinidad" be stricken out of the asphalt paving specifications in order that other asphalt companies might compete for this paving, and from individual expression of the committee this will probably be done, although no definite action was taken.

Resolutions were approved to pave Erie street from Logan to North Railroad avenue; to turnpike Michigan street; to grade Union street from Bancroft street to Woodruff avenue; to pave Utah street from Fassett street to the Brown road; to grade Yondota street from First street to the Lake Shore railway; to grade Erie street from Galena to Sandusky street, and to repair the Lagrange street pavement from Bancroft street to Ten Mile creek.

The contract for turnpiking Oakland avenue from Cherry to Blanchard street was awarded to Wain and Manor for $75.90.

The sewer committee approved ordinances for a sewer in Sixteenth street, from Monroe to Jefferson; and for a sewer in Ravine alley; also a resolution for a sewer in the alley between West Broadway and Orchard streets.

TOLEDO LINES NOTIFIED

Regarding the Great Rush from Minneapolis

As Soon as the Convention is Concluded—Some Ten Thousand People Holding Ironclad Tickets—Railroad Matters.

Toledo lines were notified to-day by the Western Passenger association that in view of the fact that there are some 75,000 strangers in Minneapolis, 10,000 of whom hold ironclad signature tickets, and as the majority of the holders will desire to leave the city immediately after the convention closes, the Minneapolis terminal lines say that it will be utterly impossible to secure the usual signature and witness of ironclad signature tickets, and they have therefore agreed to waive these conditions for the day the convention closes and four days following.

MADE A GOOD HAUL.

Wapakoneta, June 10.—(Special)—Yesterday Wm. Hasting was at Lima and collected $640 and intended to deposit it here in bank. Last night the family were chloroformed by burglars, who ransacked the residence and secured the above amount. The family did not miss anything until this morning. The thieves overlooked $60 which was in Mr. Hasting's pocket.

A GREAT ENTERPRISE

Company Formed With a Cash Capital Stock of $100,000.

Incorporation Papers Forwarded to Columbus.

The Company Buys the Toledo Nail Works and Will Trouble the Size of the Structure.

What promises to be one of the greatest industries that Toledo has secured in years was to-day incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000. The stock was subscribed in full before the papers were signed.

The name of the new enterprise will be the Yost Manufacturing company, and its principal aim will be to manufacture everything in the line of bycicles.

The incorporators are J. M. Yost, Fitch Dewey, W. F. Dewey, J. K. Hamilton and E. W. Tolerton. The incorporators will meet as soon as the papers return fom Columbus and will organize.

The company has bought out the Toledo Nail works in Auburndale, and will add thereto a building 100 by 50 feet. The present building is 150x75 feet and comparatively new.

What, with such an expert as Mr. Yost as manager, and such a moneyed backing, the enterprise promises to be a splendid addition to Toledo's industries. The price paid for the Nail works is at present a secret. The work of erecting the additional building will begin a ssoon as the company is organized.

IMMENSE DOCKS

To be Constructed on the East Side at Once.

The Pennsylvania Secures a 28 Acre Tract.

Bounded by the Cherry Street Bridge, Rolling Mills, Front Street and the River—The Deal Closed.

A month ago the Bee outlined in a general article the policy of the Pennsylvania Railroad company relative to its purpose of making Toledo its chief distributing point for its great coal fields. It was stated that the company proposed constructing immense docks here with a view of meeting the demands of its coal road just opened. The matter, of course, was denied by some contemporaries, but the facts, as given, prove true just the same.

To-day a deal was consummated whereby the Pennsylvania secures 25 acres of the most desirable and valuable property along the river front.

The tract has been owned by Maurice Scott, Daniel Bros., and others. It lies just north of the Cherry street bridge on the East Side, and is bounded by Cherry street on the south, Front street on the east, the rolling mills on the north, and the deep channel on the west.

The greater part of the property is under water and the anchorage of the Ohio and Toledo Yacht clubs' fleets cover the greater part of it. The exact price paid is not given, but the Pennsylvania purchases on the East Side in that vicinity wil lamount to $50,000.

This is but a small item, however, compared to the amount the company proposes expending in the construction of coal docks.

The definite plans for the proposed docks have not yet been made public, but enough is known to show that it is proposed to construct a series of docks that will run out into deep water.

It is said that the Pennsylvania will expend $500,000 in docks alone at this point during the next year or two.

LOOK INSIDE YOUR WATCH.

Extraordinary Facts in Connection With the Timepiece of Everyday Use.

Open your watch and look at the little wheels, springs and screws, each an indispensable part of the whole wonderful machine. Notice the busy little balance wheel as it flies to and fro unceasingly, day and night, year in and year out. This wonderful little machine is the result of hundreds of years of study and experiment. The watch carried by the average man is composed of 98 pieces and its manufacture embraces more than 2,000 distinct and separate operations. Some of the smallest screws are so minute that the unaided eye cannot distinguish them from steel filings or specks of dirt Under a powerful magnifying glass a perfect screw is revealed. The slit in the head is 2-1000 of an inch thick. It is coiled up in spiral form, and finely tempered. The process of tempering these springs was long held as a secret by the few fortunate ones possessing it, and even now is not generally known. Their manufacture requires great skill and care. The strip is gauged to 20-1,000 of an inch, but no measuring instrument has as yet been devised capable of fine enough gauging to determine beforehand by the size of the strip what the strength of the finished spring will be. A 1-20,000 part of an inch difference in the thickness of he strip makes a difference in the running of a watch of about six minutes per hour.

The value of these springs, when finished and placed in watches, is enormous in proportion to the material from which they are made. A comparison will give a good idea. A ton of steel made into hair-springs when in watches is worth more than twelve and one-half times the value of the same weight in pure gold. Hair-spring wire weighs one-twentieth of a grain to the inch. One mile of wire wieghs less than half a pound. The balance gives five vibrations every second, 300 every minute, 18,000 every hour, 432,000 every day, and 157,680,000 every year. At each vibration it rotates about one and one-fourth times, which makes 197,100,000 revolutions every year. In order that we may better understand the stupendous amount of labor performed by these tiny works let us make a few comparisons. Take, for illustration, a locomotive with six-foot driving wheels. Let its wheels be run until they have given the same number of revolutions that a watch does in one year and they will have covered a distance equal to twenty-by these tiny woks let us make a few this a watch does without other attention hours.

A VILLAGE TALE.

Miss Elvira Eunice Parker,
Single lady—by desire—
Years ago was quite determined
What she'd do in case of fire.
Thus she reasoned: "I would dress me,
Wholly without perturbation,
Gather up my chief belongings,
See to Tabitha's salvation.
From its hook take down the parrot,
Cheery partner of my labors,
Then I'd raise my chamber window,
And alarm the sleeping neighbors."

Well one night a fire started
As Miss Parker slept. The smoke her
Chamber filled, and presently the
Suffocating smell awoke her.
Did she do as she had reasoned!
No; she quite forgot her scheming,
And with shrieks she roused the neighbors
From the sweetest of their dreaming.
She threw vases from the window;
Tabitha her own salvation
Had to seek out, while the parrot
Used a word that ends with -ation.
When the neighbors came, they found a
White-robed figure wildly screaming,
All the fire was soon extinguished,
But she kept on loudly calling:
"Fire! Fire! Fire! Fire!"
In a manner most appalling.
And the neighbors, having stopped her,
When they finally departed
Left Miss Parker—single lady—
In the ruins—broken hearted.

The United States is fast crowding Switzerland out of the watch market, and there is no part of the world, no matter how remote, where the tick of the American watch cannot be heard. To-day American factories turn out 35,000 watches a week. Almost the only time-pieces imported are repeaters, stop-watches and those having special movement, which bring a high price.

The origin of the term "White Cap" was not due to the peculiar head-dress worn by this fraternity in Indiana, but to a family in Ireland who engaged in this kind of reform 100 years ago, when Ireland was more populous than now and when the people were not so harrassed by British misrule. The Whitecaps (not White Caps, two words, as written in this country) were a terror to evil-doers, thrashing them with cat-o'-nine-tails.

There is a fruit grower in Kentucky who noticed that in three out of five years his best apples and peaches were killed by March frost. After trying various experiments he hit upon the idea of digging a circular trench around the roots of each tree, filling it with pounded snow and ice and then covering up with a thick stratum of clay. The budding was thus prolonged until April, when all danger of frost was past.

The custom of adoption is universal in Japan, where it is practiced to keep a family name from becoming extinct. Indeed, there is scarcely a family in which it has not at some time or other been practiced. A person who has no male issue adopts a son, and if he has a daughter, often gives her to him in marriage. A youth, or even a child, who may be the head of the family, often adopts, on the point of dying, a son sometimes older than himself to succeed him.

More than $7,000 worth of granite and other building material has been donated for the Maine world's fair building. Cash to the amount of $15,000 will be expended upon the structure, $10,000 coming out of the state's appropriation and $5,000 being raised by subscription. Monson slate will cover the roof, which a Maine newspaper declares will be the "handsomest in Chicago." Leading up to the building will be broad granite steps, each one being a solid block twenty-seven feet long and six feet wide.

The bureau of the American republics is informed of the completion of the Grand Trunk railroad of Uruguay, from Montevideo, 362 miles north of Rivera, on the Brazilian frontier. The works were begun in August, 1888. The immediate result of this line to Brazil will be to open up a vast tract of fertile land heitherto comparatively valueless. The Brazilian government is now constructing a railroad south from Rio Grande to Polotas, which will soon reach the boundary and furnish direct railroad communication between Montevideo and those two important cities in southern Brazil.

AN OPERATOR'S ROMANCE.

There is no use in trying to disguise the fact—Harold Howe was heartily disgusted with the whole business. The continual "tick" of the small machines made him actually cross, and he decided, as he stood looking out of the office window watching for the approaching train, that he would find some occupation more suited to his fastidious tastes. To be sure he might return home and assist his father in a sort of subjective way, but he preferred independence. He would find something besides this monotonous "tick."

"There's the train now. Wonder how many passengers must wait over this time. Hope some pretty maid will want to telegraph—anything for a change! By Jove! there's a fine-looking girl. Wonder if she's reached her destination or if she waits. Hope it is the latter. Probably won't do me any good, though."

"Mr. Howe! Wake up, will you? Man over there wants your attention!"

"Yes," he growled. "All right."

For the next few minutes he was too busy to think of the new arrival. When he did so he found her close to his elbow.

"I'd like to send a message, please," she said rather crossly.

"Yes," Harold, replied with his best air, and pushed a blank toward her.

"Deuc'dly pretty," he thought, "but how lofty she is!"

The message was written and returned to the operator, who read as follows:

"Left at Irving. Come on next train.
"IRENE."

"Oh—ah—does your friend know at what hour the train arrives?" Harold inquired.

"Well, I don't know," said the lady, doubtfully.

"Perhaps I can arrange it so that she may." And after inserting a few seeming hieroglyphics, the message was made to read more to the point. "Ah—sorry you were disappointed," he said insinuatingly.

"Yes, so am I," without the ghost of a smile.

"Have you come far?" he persisted, undismayed by her coldness.

"No—only from Jersey." And then the lady left the office.

Trivial things seriously affect one's life. From the hour of meeting the beautiful, though cold Irene, Harold was a changed man. For the last month he had been so cross that the small boys in the office stood in awe of him. But in the last few days his mood had suddenly changed and no one heard anything about the "everlasting grind" of life. From appearances Mr. Howe was perfectly satisfied with his lot.

However, his eyes always turned in the direction of the approaching train from Vere, and he seemed to be expecting something or some one. No passenger boarded the train without a critical survey from him; "for," he reasoned, "she must come back some time and I shall see her at least once more."

The long-looked for day at last arrived; the trains were late, as usual, so "Irene" was obliged to wait at the station for about half an hour. Harold saw her enter and lost no time in finding some excuse to betake himself to the waiting room.

He looked at the lady, and, astonishing fact! she recognized him graciously. Gaining courage from her smiles, and not observing a certain mischievous expression in her eyes, he approached, and for a few moments they conversed together. In these few seconds young Howe discovered that Irene—her last name he did not know—was the one girl in the whole world for him.

The train approached, and he had some business to attend to in the office before it left. Awful thought! He might never see her again, and all he knew of her was her first name and that she came from Jersey! Grasping a card, he hurriedly placed it in an envelope, and finding the conductor, asked him to hand it to Irene, describing her as best he could. He knew it was a bold thing to undertake, but it was all that seemed left for him to do now, and she might possibly send hers in return.

How long the days seemed to poor Harold. He no longer watched for the trains. People came and went from the town of Jersey, but he was no longer concerned with them. The mails held his only interest. Letters came from day to day, but not the desired one. After a lapse of about two weeks, however, the postmaster brought "Mr. H. Howe" a dainty envelope, and Harold knew it was the long desired missive. His hand trembled as he tore open the seal and disclosed a dainty card with the following name written upon it: "Mrs. Harry Dwight Hall."

Did he faint? No. He merely wrote to his father something as follows:

Guess I'll come home and make it up with Eunice, after all; fine girl! Expect me to-morrow.—San Francisco Call.

SAFE, SURE AND SPEEDY.

No external remedy ever yet devised has so fully and unquestionably met these three prime conditions as successfully as Allcock's Porous Plasters. They are safe because they contain no deleterious drugs and are manufactured upon scientific principles of medicine. They are sure because nothing goes into them except ingredients which are exactly adapted to the purposes for which a plaster is required. They are speedy in their action because their medicinal qualities go right to their work of relieving pain and restoring the natural and healthy performance of the functions of muscles, nerves and skin. Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for Allcock's, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

PREPARING FOR THE FIGHT

Jim Corbett Has Gone Into Training

For the Great Contest With John L. Sullivan.

Toledo Wins a Game of Ball at Kansas City—All the Sporting Gossip.

New York, June 10.—Jim Corbett has gone into training for his contest next September with John L. Sullivan. His training headquarters are near Asbury Park, and he occupies the Redding cottage, near Loch Arbour, on the north side of Deal Lake.

William Brady, his manager, had previously secured the pretty cottage belonging to Capt. Edwards of the life saving station, but when the latter found it was to be occupied by the pugilist he returned the rent money and insisted on the lease being cancelled.

Rather than have any trouble, Brady complied. The residents of Loch Arbour, about all of whom own the property they occupy, are not at all pleased with the new visitors that have come amongst them, and have established a rigid boycott. This, however, does not matter to the pugilists, as they infinitely prefer to be left alone. Corbett is firmly of the opinion that he can whip the Boston big man, and says that if he did not think so he certainly would not figh .

He says that his advantages are greater height, longer reach, and that he is also more scientific and quicker. He admits that Sullivan can hit a good deal harder than any other man, but thinks he can keep out of reach long enough to tire him out. Corbett evidently looks for a sprinting match for the first few rounds. He expects to go into the ring weighing about 205 pounds.

His trainers are Jim Daley and Dr. John W. Gibbs of this city, and the latter says that from a comparison of Corbett's present measurements with those of Sullivan, as recorded by Dr. George F. Shrady, Corbett is found to be by far the better man at the present time.

Dr. Gibbs says: "Sullivan is abnormal. He is 50 pounds overweight, and his waist measurement is seven inches in excess of what it ought to be. Sullivan's extra weight is just where it is hardest to get rid of."

WHERE.

An Englishman visiting this country hastens to disclaim insular prejudices when he declares that the much discussed and abused sparrow is a more beautiful bird "at home" than he is in America. The chirpy little fellow's feathers here are muddy and dull in appearance. In England his plumage is bright, glossy and decidedly attractive. He attributes the difference to the climate. Here the climate is changeable, one extreme following another quite closely, while in England the fog and dampness are perhaps conducive to brighter plumage.—Boston Journal.

GOOD WORDS FOR LONDON FOGS.

The saying that it is an ill wind that blows nobody good receives a new exemplification in the experience of the Westminster Electric Supply company of London, whose chairman recently stated that the winter fog of that metropolis was the shareholder's best friend.

During one week of almost continuous fog the receipts for electric lighting increased from $4,000 to $6,000, a gain of 50 per cent. —Engineering Magazine for June.

BABY'S FIRST TWO YEARS.

By Her Mother.

My baby is now two and one-half years old, and a brighter, sweeter child is seldom seen.

The first few months of her life, this little one suffered tortures from eczema. Our most eminent physician, Dr. J. F. Croston, treated her, lancing several large abscesses. It is no wonder that we were completely discouraged. Yet when our hearts were saddest there came relief, and in a wonderful way. We had tried nearly all the foods sold by our druggist, but utterly in vain. Our physician recommended something else. We tried it, and noticed an improvement after the first three meals. There was no further need of medicine, for this food made our little girl so strong and healthy that the dread eruption was soon cured.

Her teeth all came with little trouble, she has had no difficulty from indigestion, and her sleep has been sound and unbroken. This food is called Lactated, and I want every mother to know of it.

* * * * * *

The history given above was written by Mrs. Morris A. Smith, 32 Race street, Haverhill, Mass. The picture of her baby proves all that Mrs. Smith has written about its present good health. She is but one of the thousands of mothers, who, when all earthly help seemed in vain, have seen their little ones come back to health solely through the use of this pure food. Yet Lactated Food is not a medicine—it is simply a pure food that keeps the well baby strong, and in a natural way makes the sick baby well.

* *

Lactated Food is sold by the best druggists, or mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents, 50 cents, $1.00. Interesting book of prize babies and beautiful birthday card, free, to any mother sending her baby's name.

THE ATHLETIC TREATMENT.

How Broken Down Systems May be Built Up Again.

Perhaps athletes are to be the physicians of the future, for it has become somewhat the fashion for men broken in health through overwork or high living to go to them for treatment. A well known athlete who takes charge of such cases, treating his patients at a little farm that he owns, describes the regime in his camp.

Tobacco and liquor are prohibited, and a prompt rising at 6 o'clock without an extra wink of sleep insisted upon. The first day, light calisthenics, bath, and rubbing down follow rising; then the patients dress in flannels and outer garments that are not too heavy and take a short walk. At 8 o'clock a breakfast of fruit, oatmeal or cracked wheat, with a little milk, eggs, boiled or poached, toast or stale bread, and one cup of tea or coffee is served. No greasy food and little water or other liquids are allowed. After breakfast the patients rest for an hour or an hour and a half, in the open air if the weather is fine, riding or talking. At 10 o'clock a rapid walk of three or four miles is taken, or a horse-back ride. Those in training for feats of strength put on sweaters and travel ten or twelve miles, slowly at first and increasing the pace till it becomes a trot, then a run. When too tired to keep up, then the pace is moderated until the men are rested, when more rapid movement is begun again. Returning home at noon the men wrap themselves in blankets and lie down in a large room that has been thoroughly aired. If thirsty they are permitted a little hot water, not a drop of cold. When in a profuse perspiration they are quickly rubbed down and wrapped again in their blankets until perspiring again, and once more rubbed down. The next thing is a cold plunge in a large room where the water, kept at a temperature of 70 degrees, flows through a large tank filled with rock salt. Three showers of thirty seconds each are then had and the patients are rubbed dry and given massage. They then rest until the 1 o'clock dinner. Then comes wrestling, boxing, or jumping. Skipping rope and jumping hurdles are also forms of exercise recommended for making the body supple and giving wind. For the sponge-bath that follows the exercise, a mixture of two parts of alcohol to one of witch-hazel is used. A short drive is occasionally the next thing, and then comes the supper of cold meat or fowl, stale bread or toast, cold stewed fruits, and tea. After resting an hour, if one chooses, he may play pool or billiards in a well-ventilated room. At 9 o'clock all go to their rooms, and by 10 they are enjoying a delicious sleep.

The attention given to diet, bathing, and exercise in the treatment given is full of valuable suggestions to mothers with growing sons and daughters that they desire to keep in perfect health.—New York Evening Post.

QUEER FACTS ABOUT GOLD.

A cubic inch of gold is worth, in round numbers, $210; a cubic foot, $362,380, and a cubic yard, $9,797,762, this on the basis of $18 per ounce. At the beginning of the Christian era there was $427,000,000 of gold in the world, but at the time of the discovery of America the total of the world's gold supply had been reduced to $57,000,000. The amount of gold now in use is estimated as being worth $10,000,000,000.

NOT BACKING ENGLAND'S PAPER

An American Drummer Who Made it a Rule Never to Endorse for Anybody.

"I heard a good one about Billy Tompkins," said one of a group of commercial travelers last night in the Continental hotel. "You know Billy travels for Fluellen & Co."

A murmur and a reminiscent assent was the response.

"Well, sir," continued the first speaker, "you know what a hustler he is. Did some slashing business last fall, and the firm gave him a check for a bonus and told him to go and take a trip to Europe. Well, sir, Billy set out to have a real good time, and he had it. While he was in London he took lunch one day at the famous tavern in the city called the 'Ship and Turtle,' where a sovereign just about sees you through your lunch, and he had imbibed a little too much 'turtle' punch.

"When he left there he was run out of small change, and he thought he would play big and go to the Bank of England and get a £20 note redeemed in gold. 'That's the way I'll change it,' quoth he. So into the dingy old building he strode, and putting his £20 note down before the cashier's window, said: 'Give me gold for that, will you?'

"'Certainly, sir,' said the cashier, just put your name on the back of it please.'

"Then Billy, tipsywise, saw a chance for some fun, and replied:

"'My name on it! What for?'

"'Oh, mere formality—note withdrawn, you know. Tell how it came back to bank. Customary thing.'

"'I'll be darned if I sign it,' says Billy. 'You don't catch me going round indorsing any corporation's paper in this reckless style.'

"'Why, my dear sir, gasped the astounded cashier, 'this is a Bank of England note, good for its face value the world over.'

"'Don't care, said Billy, with tipsy gravity. 'I'm not familiar with the financial condition of the Bank of England, and hanged if I indorse its paper. I'm an American.'

"'If you were a Fiji islander,' almost shrieked the cashier, 'you ought to know the value of a Bank of England note.'

"'Well, persisted Billy, 'what do you want me to indorse it for? I indorse it, don't I, if I sign my name to the back?'

"'Great heavens!' ejaculated the cashier, goaded to a condition of frenzy by Billy's imperturbable manner. 'Where do such people as this come from? If it was the note of hand of a bankrupt cat's meat man he couldn't be more suspicious. Here, you, sir. Will you sign the note?'

"'No sir. I made a vow that I would never put my name on any promises to pay.'

"'Send for the manager,' shouted the cashier, turning to a clerk. 'He will explain it to you,' added he, turning to Billy.

"The manager came, and all at once Billy's manner changed and in the most urbane manner possible he told him he did not understand at first the necessity for signing, and, putting his name on the note with a flourish, got gold coins for it and walked out, leaving the two officials looking after him with puzzled faces.

"Billy told them all at the Hotel Metropole over a glass of hot whisky and water, and asked:

"'Did I get a rise out of the Bank of England, or did I not?'"

The general opinion was that he did.—Helena Independent.

MY LADDIE'S HOUNDS.

They are my laddie's hounds
That rin the wood at brak o' day.
Wha is it takes them hence? Can any say
Wha is it takes my laddie's hounds
At brak o' day?

They cleek aff thegither,
An' then fa' back, wi' room atween
For ane to walk, sae aften, I hae seen
The baith cleek aff thegither
Wi' ane atween!

And when toward the pines
Up yonder lane they loup alang,
I see ae bonnie laddie brent and strang,
I see ae laddie laup alang
Toward the pines.

I follow them, in mind.
Ilk time; right weel I ken the way—
They thrid the wood, an' speel the stanny brae,
An' skir the field; I follow them.
I ken the way.

They daddle at the creek,
Whaur down fra aff the reaching-logs
I stoup, wi' my dear laddie, an' the dogs,
An' drink o' springs that spait the creek
Maist to the logs.

He's but ae bairn, altho'
He hunts the mountain's lonely bree,
His doggies' ears abune their brows wi' glee
He ties; he's but ae bairn, ae bairn, altho'
He hunts the bree.

Fu' length they a' stretch out
Upon ae bink that green trees hap
In shade. He whusslits saft; the beagles nap
Wi' een half shut, ae stretchin' out
Whaur green trees hap.

And noo he fades awa'
Frae 'tween the twa—into the blue.
My sight gats blind; gude Lord, it isna true
That he has gane for aye, awa'
Into the blue!

They are my laddie's hounds
That mak the hill at fa' o' day
Wi' dowie heads hung laigh; can ony say
Wha is it hunts my laddie's hounds
'Till fa' o' day?

ROUTING AN ARMY.

How the Worst Invasion of Modern Times Is Absolutely Overcome—Hints of Great Value.

When men or women feel depressed or debilitated at the present day, it is common to say, "I think I have malaria." What is malaria? It is only germs that get into the body; germs that thrive and increase unless they are killed; germs that worm themselves all through the system; germs that ruin the health and undermine the life. They are aggressive, they feed upon the body, they must be killed. Many things which have been advocated for killing these germs will not do so. It has been thought that quinine would accomplish this, but many people cannot take quinine; it disagrees with them, it often nauseates. It is known, however, that pure spirits taken in moderation will kill and entirely exterminate the worst army of germs which ever invaded the system. They cannot withstand it. Under the influence of pure stimulants the germs are killed, and the body is strengthened to expel them from the system, and thus restore the health.

It should not be understood, however, that all spirits will do this, few will. It requires something specially pure, and specially designed for this purpose, and that is precisely what Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is. It is a scientific, medicinal preparation. It does not rank with the ordinary whiskies, but is specially designed for fortifying the body and repelling disease. It has the highest endorsements of doctors and scientists; it is wonderfully popular because it is so efficient and powerful. Do not be deceived into the use of any other, for there is no other preparation upon the market that can accomplish what is accomplished by Duffy's Pure Malt. You will find that it is kept by reliable druggists and grocers.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Currents for Produce and Other Articles.

It has been a day of weakness in all the markets for all kinds of agricultural products, and prices close lower for wheat, corn and oats. The bears have got the market turned downward, and unless something turns up, prices may break off further.

Corn is weak as well as wheat, and it looks to us without reason, considering the chances for a crop.

Foreign markets close irregular. Liverpool higher, Paris lower.

In New York June wheat closed 1c and July 7-8c lower. June corn 1 1-2c, and July 7-8c lower. June oats 3-4c lower.

In Chicago, June wheat closed 1c, and July 1 1-4c lower. June corn 5-8c and July 7-8c lower. June oats 3-8c lower.

In Toledo there has been more trading in wheat to-day, but it has been a quiet, weak and declining market. Opening prices were a shade lower, but the market slowly but quite steadily declined to the close. June and cash wheat closed 1 1-4c, July 1c and August 7-8c lower. On the call July sold at 87 7-8 to 87 5-8; August at 87 5-8 to 87 3-4. After the call, June wheat sold at 92 and closed at 91 1-4; July sold at 89 7-8 and closed at 89 asked; August sold at 87 3-4 and closed at 87 1-8. Cash wheat was dull and very little sold; No. 2 soft sold at 91 3-4 and at 92 in L. S., closing at 91 1-4; No. 3 soft about 87 3-4; No. 4 soft about 82.

Corn, No. 2 at 51 1-2; July at 51; No. 3 at 50; No. 4 at 45 1-2. Oats, No. 2 at 35 1-2. Nothing in rye; No. 2 about 82.

MADE A HARD FIGHT.

Blaine Men Went Down With Colors Flying

Minneapolis, June 10.—The Blaine men remained in conference until 5 o'clock and after a couple of hours of sleep were again hard at work. Emmons Blaine was with them until near breakup. A gentleman who was present reports that the spirit of opposition to the presidents nomination was more bitter and that extreme measures was considered or suggested. These included a proposition to leave the convention hall in a body if it were prospered (in case of Harrison renomination) to make the nomination unanimous. Shortly before 10 o'clock Emmons Blaine was asked how the situation was this morning.

"We cannot tell," he reported to have answered, "until after we get into the convention again."

"Do you look or your ather's nomination?"

"That cannot be difinitely answered before another ballot is taken. When that is done I think the Harrison men will find that they are not so strong as they thought they were last night."

At 10:30 a report was circulated, credited to John Millholland, one of Platt's New York lieutenants, that the anti-administration leaders had telegraphed ex-Secretary Blaine the situation and asked him for instructions.

WORKING THE CORNERS.

A Rumor That Blaine Men Will Turn to McKinley.

Minneapolis, June 10.—A number of the anti-Harrison people were in conference between 2 ad 4 o'clock this morning and from the tone of the gossip about the hotel corridors, it was believed by the Harrison managers that they had determined to put McKinley forward to-day.

The Harrison men were out early. An hour later they had begun their work in the state delegations.

When the report of the committee on credentials on the Utah case is reached, present indications are that there will be a fight over the recommendations of the committee, and the division upon entirely different lines than those which separated the delegates in the Alabama contest.

Delegate Cannon's speech last night; his bold avowal that he was a Mormon and his appeal to the republican party to recognize him as such, and thereby to express their belief that the days of polygamy and church denomination in Utah had passed away, and consequently that the territory was fitted to be admitted into the galaxy of states, have aroused in the strongest manner the apprehensions of those who have given study to the Mormon question.

The Illinois delegation, under the leadership of Senator Cullom, will vote solidly against the admission of young Cannon and his associate, Salisbury, and Indiana will take the same side. Other Harrison delegates, it is said, will not sustain the committee report on this case.

On the Alabama test vote Salisbury voted with the Blaine men and Cannon with the administration people.

NEVER SAY DIE.

Blaine Men Preparing to Fight to the Last Ditch.

Minneapolis, June 10.—The prospect this morning is that the supporters of Mr. Blaine will fight to the last ditch. It was given out early that the contest over the report of the committee on credentials will be continued this morning and the ballot delayed as long as possible.

The Harrison men say this plan is solely for the purpose of giving the idea to the country that the contest is close and bitter and that the selection of a third candidate is the only solution of the situation.

One of Mr. Platt's closest friends this morning prepared for circulation among the delegates the following analysis of last night's vote on the Alabama case.

Southern votes for Blaine, 97; southern votes for Harrison, 182. Sure republican states: Blaine, 267; Harrison, 184. Doubtful states: Blaine, 66; Harrison 78.

The statement goes on to point out that nearly all the majority came from the southern states, where the republican party does not secure a single electoral vote. The leaders of the anti-Harrison movement professed themselves this morning as being not a whit discouraged. Under no circumstances they say, will they give up the fight.

When the balloting was reached and the supporters of Alger, McKinley, Sherman, and Allison were taken from the Harrison vote of last night it would be seen that they (the Blaineites) practically controlled the situation.

The Blaine vote last night or rather early this morning, they say, represented a strength that will remain by him and none of which is pledged to any other candidate, while the vote of the opposition was made up not only of supporters of Harrison, but also of all the outside elements.

On the other hand, the friends of the president count upon being from 20 to 40 votes stronger to-day than last night.

PALMER TAKES THE LEAD.

He Saw Harrison's Renomination in the Test Vote.

Minneapolis, June 10. — Ex-Senator Thomas W. Palmer, of Michigan, president of the Columbian world's fair, sent a telegram to President Harrison immediately after the adjournment of the caucus of Harrison delegates yesterday, congratulating him upon his assured re-nomination. He probably got in the first message. One of the Alger men, speaking of the Harrison caucus before the vote last night said that the mistake the managers made was that they counted delegates and alternates both.

MORTON NOT WANTED.

The Southern Delegates Think He Is Altogether Too Chilly.

Minneapolis, June 10.—Although the close of the convention is so near there had not up to this morning, been a breath of discussion regarding the vice presidency.

Singularly enough in the anti-convention campaigning the name of Mr. Morton has never once been coupled by the Harrison men with their chief in the event of the latter securing the nomination.

The southern delegates who are perfectly willing to leave the naming of a nominee for vice president to the New York delegation, but they do not enthuse over Mr. Morton, and seem inclined to the opinion that new timber might be found for the second place.

A good many delegates on being questioned concerning their preferences were favorably disposed toward Senator Allison of Iowa, while some of those from Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois, regarded Whitelaw Reid as having qualifications that would make him a strong running mate with the president.

Were it not for geographical considerations Robert Lincoln would have considerable support. The NewJersey delegates are kindly disposed toward Senator Sewell, although it is admitted that his corporation affiliations might prove an element of weakness.

There is a considerable undercurrent of talk concerning the policy of placing a popular northwestern man on the ticket to offset the granger movements in that region, and in this connection the name of J. S. Pillsbury, of this city, has been mentioned.

The probabilities are, however, that as was the case both in 1884 and 1888, the New York delegation will be left free to select its own candidate, and its choice will be ratified by the convention.

SENATOR SPOONER,

The Badger Statesman, Puts In His Oar.

Mr. President and gentlemen of the convention: The preliminaries are settled and it is a relief that we are at last face to face with the great duty which we came hither to perform. That the action of this body, composed of representative men, who love the republican party and seek to promote its success, for its record and its principles, will be deliberate, though truthful and patriotic, and such as to secure for it the approval of those who sent us here, cannot well be doubted.

National republican conventions have not been accustomed to make mistakes. That which met at Chicago in 1888 made no mistake when it entrusted the honor and responsibility of leadership to Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana, and Benjamin Harrison made no mistakes. He quickly proved himself an ideal candidate and leader who led. Millions of hostile and eager eyes searched his whole life in vain for spot or blemish.

On the march and in the battle no man rode before him. Calm, dignified and wise, each day brought him from his lips a deliverance in itself a perfect platform, unexcelled for grace of diction, power of epigrammatic statement, and the spirit of true eloquence.

He imbued the party with renewed vigor and strength and intrepidly led it to victory.

His friends bring his name into this convention proudly, conscious that the record which he has made needs not to be supplemented by words of advocacy.

He has been, from the day of his inauguration what the people elected him to be—the president of the United States. He has given to the country an administration which for ability, efficiency, purity and patriotism challenges, without fear, comparison with any which has preceded it since the foundation of the government. He has been free from "variableness or shadow of turning" in his devotion to the principle of the republican party. He has stood for the protection of American industries and the interests of wage-workers and placed with alacrity the seal of his approval upon the great tariff bill of the Fifty-first congress, which has outridden the flood of misrepresentation which swept over it, as did the ark the deluge of old, and now rests upon a foundation as solid as Mount Ararat.

He championed and promoted by every means in harmony with the dignity of his great office the adoption of the scheme of reciprocity, which, as enacted, has found favor with the people, not limited to the South American republics, or bartering the interests of one industry for the benefit of another by the free admission of competitive products, but compelling fair treatment by all governments of our people and our products under penalty of commercial retaliation.

Openly, friendly to the use of silver, as one of the coin metals of the country, under conditions which shall surely maintain it at a parity with gold, and striving to secure by international agreement the existence of those conditions, he stands, nevertheless, as firm as the granite which underlies the continent against a foreign policy which would debase the currency of the people.

Nor did he forget or disregard the solemn pledge of the republican party that "every citizen, rich or poor, native or foreign born, white or black," is entitled at every public election to cast one free ballot and to have that ballot honestly counted and faithfully returned.

With a skill, dignity and courage which has compelled the admiration of political friend and foe alike he has caused it to be understood throughout the world that the American flag represents a government which has the power and the will to protect the American uniform and American interests everywhere, whether assailed by peppery neighbors to the south of us, or by the diplomacy of power of Great Britain. Every interest of the people has had his best care and his best thought and he stands before the country to-day well approved and universally acknowledged to be a man of transcendant ability, of extraordinary capacity for the discharge of executive duty, of exalted patriotism and lofty purpose, who would not for a unanimous renomination by this convention swerve one hair's breadth in any matter of duty, great or small, from what he believes to be just and right.

It is said against him that he has made enemies, and it is evidently true. So did Washington, so did Jackson, so did Lincoln, so did Grant, so did Garfield and so did Arthur. But this convention will not mistake the lamentations of the disappointed for the voice of the "plain people." This argument for him overestimates the importance of individuals and underestimates the intelligence and patriotism of the masses.

They will not be gulled into the belief that the object of the government is the bestowal of office. They care little for the ambitions of leaders or whether John Smith secures an office this month, next month, or not at all. They demand of a president that he shall be able to please every one. They want good government.

They demand honesty, ability and industry and purity in public and private life, and all this they have had in behalf of Harrison.

We place him before this convention as one who can hear and will bear wether nominated or not (for he is a republican) his full share in the contest which to-day is to begin. The republicans of every state, save one in convention assembled, have indorsed, with enthusiasm, his administration.

Upon that administration and its record of efficiency and achievement, the republican party is to win, if at all, in the coming campaign.

There is nothing persuasive in the assertion that those who so enthusiastically approve an administration will withhold their approval from the man who is responsible for it and who has largely made it. Put him again at the head of the column.

Place again in his hand the banner of republicanism and he will carry it aggressively all the time at the front and he will lead us again to victory.

There will be irresistible power and inspiration in the knowledge which pervades the people that so long as he is president there is one at the helm who, whatever betides us, at home or abroad, will bring to the solution of every question, to the execution of every policy, and to the performance of every duty, a splendid and disciplined intellect, absolute rectitude of purpose, an unfaltering desire to conserve every interest of every section, a self poise which is sure safeguard against hasty or mistaken judgment and a patriotism which never has wavered, either in war or in peace.

PILLSBURY'S SPEECH.

He Praises the President With Burning Words.

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen of the Convention, and Fellow Citizens:

On behalf of a portion of the California delegation I have been accorded the honor and the pleasure to second the nomination of Mr. Harrison.

The republicans of California, speaking by delegates assembled in their last convention, declared that they knew of no one better suited to be our candidate in 1892 than he who had so successfully led us to victory in 1888.

It is but fair to state also that the same convention expressed its continued admiration for the gentleman who was then the secretary of state and whose preeminent abilities they recognized have so largely contributed to the brilliant success of the present administration.

And let me assure you that, though now divided in our choice, there will be no differences among us after the candidate is made by this convention. The republican party of California have demonstrated their ability to carry that state for either Harrison or Blaine and you may rest satisfied that they will keep that record good.

But the republicans, in fact the people generally of the state of California, hold in the highest estimation the chief executive of the United States. From the inception of his official duties they have watched his labors as he toiled on from month to month and from year to year until they have grown firm in the conviction that his has been the greatest, grandest administration since the days of the honored and lamented Lincoln.

When visitors are among us they read and listened to his speeches and marked him as one of the greatest men of the world. In his conduct of the affairs of this nation they find nothing wanting, nothing to extenuate.

He has exalted the glory and dignity of the American flag throughout the whole habitable globe.

Of spotless character, his official conduct has borne the same stamp of integrity as his private life.

His administration, it may be truly said, has proceeded strictly upon the lines of honor, of law and justice. In the light of these facts it seems to me that we should be derelict in duty to turn our backs upon this great leader, so tried and faithful a soldier, a man who in the dark days of our country's peril, risked his life on many a well fought battle-field in defense of that government which as president he has done so much to dignify and strengthen.

Then banish not this Aristides because he is just, but rather to reward his noble conduct that those who come after him may live in the assurance that the generous people of the United States can never be liable to the charge of ingratitude or indifference to those who have done good service in their behalf.

Bear in mind that in the discharge of our high and responsible duty of selecting the next president of the United States no consideration of personal feeling or personal advantage may enter into our deliberations.

It is the welfare of the whole people of this great country which we must study and subserve, these teeming millions whose eyes are now anxiously turned to the convention, and by whose verdict in next November shall we be judged at last.

Nominate this man and the people may be safely trusted to elect him, well knowing by past experiences that while he remains our president every man in this broad land, under his own vine shall eat in safety what he plants, and from his example "all men shall read the perfect ways of honor, and by those claims their greatness."

M'COMAS,

The Maryland Man, Seconds Harrison.

By the republicans of the south one million and a half votes were cast and counted for Benjamin Harrison. In eight states of the border south we polled one million votes then. We will make a more hopeful fight now. Four of them are doubtful states. On the roll of victory in the autumn look for the electoral vote of at least two southern states safe for the candidates of this convention. In nominating these candidates we gratefully refer to the victorious column of republican states. Some service we have rendered. It was southern republican votes in the last congress which placed the gavel in Tom Reed's hands, which added two young republican states to your column, helped keep the people's money sound and make it more abundant, secured the McKinley tariff, the blessings and benefits of protection and reciprocity. We republicans of the south each cast one vote for our national ticket. At the free and fair elections of the north and west which of you cast more than one vote? You walked to the ballot box, your faces beaming with anticipated victory. We, facing twenty years of defeat, stubbornly cast our ballots, with decreasing trust in the count, with increasing love for the party of freedom.

Its platform is for the whole country, its cadidate is for the whole country. In behalf of the republicans of the south, I second the nomination of that intense American, the president of the whole country, Benjamin Harrison. His administration clean, strong, able, courageous, patriotic, is our platform. Untried four years ago he conquered Cleveland. Great achievements now, send him forth to conquer Cleveland once more. Behold, the assembling democracy turn to their old champion, they are putting his old armor, scarred by diplomatic surrenders, stained with pension vetoes, upon the prophet of free trade. For our champion send forth the great president of this great administration, and champion of protection, with the sword of reciprocity, with the flag inscribed with Samoa, Italy and Bering Sea, once more the emblem of peace with honor. They nominate Cleveland thrice. We may wisely nominate Harrison twice. The republican party never renominated a president it did not re-elect.

Benjamin Harrison's administration challenges comparison with any other. It is unstained by scandal, it is decorated with successes. Our national credit is secure. Our treasury issues honest dollars and its books are balanced. Our navy has sprung into new life. Our commerce grows on the seas. Our flour and pork are opening every door of every foreign market. Our shops and farms are sure of markets at home. Wages are steady and work is everywhere for workingmen. A free trade house of representatives has not dared to vote to repeal the republican tariff. There is but one unemployed flag, the calamity campaigners are out of a job. A prosperous people protests for the sake of that prosperity against a change in the white house. Favoring breezes once more fill the rpublican sails. It would be folly to change the skillful pilot. A statesman of high courage, an orator of rare gifts, he is the leader of his administration and its best exponent. A soldier trained in defending the union, when he saw the great secretary of state stagger in sickness, Benjamin Harrison flung his comrade's knapsack over his shoulder and carried it into camp. Nominate him and the enthusiasm will grow. It will wax greatest, not in the convention but at the polls. If his name draw less shouting here it will draw to the ballot box more of the plain people than any other name. Nominate the steadfast advocate of a free ballot and a fair count. Nominate the best and truest friend the colored race have had in the white house since Lincoln was carried out of it. Nominate the best and safest candidate for both races and for the whole country. Name him and you will re-elect Benjamin Harrison.

No Money Required of Responsible Parties to Commence Treatment

DOCTOR OTTMAN,

Formerly of New York, now the Celebrated Examining Physicians of THE FRANCE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE, Columbus, Ohio, by request of many friends and patients, have decided to visit Toledo

SATURDAY, JUNE 18.

Consultation and Examination Free and Strictly Confidential in the Private Parlor of the Burnett House from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m., one day only.

The doctors describe the different diseases better than the sick can themselves. It is a wonderful gift for any one to possess. Their diagnostic powers have created wonders throughout the country.

The France Medical and Surgical Institute of Columbus, Ohio, is the only Medical Institute in the State incorporated with a Capital of $300,000.00.

DR. OTTMAN, the Celebrated Examining Surgeon of the

FRANCE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE,
38 & 40 W. Gay St., one block N. of State House, Columbus, O. Incorporated, 1886. Capital, $300,000.

DRS. FRANCE AND OTTMAN, of New York, the well known and successful Specialists in Chronic Diseases and Diseases of the Eye and Ear, on account of their large practice in Ohio, have established the FRANCE MEDICAL INSTITUTE, where all forms of Chronic, Nervous and Private Diseases will be successfully treated on the most Scientific principles. They are ably assisted by a full corps of eminent Physicians and Surgeons, each one being a well known specialist in his profession.
CANCER positively cured without pain or use of the knife, by a new method.
IMPORTANT TO LADIES.—DR. FRANCE, after years of experience, has discovered the greatest cure known for all diseases peculiar to the sex. Female diseases positively cured by the new remedy, OLIVE BLOSSOM. The cure is effected by home treatment. Entirely harmless and easily applied. Consultation Free and Strictly Confidential. Correspondence promptly answered.

YOUNG MEN—Who have become victims of solitary vice, that dreadful and destructive habit, which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, may call with confidence.
DRS. FRANCE AND OTTMAN, after years of experience, have discovered the greatest cure known for weakness in the back and limbs, involuntary discharges, impotency, general debility, nervousness, languor, confusion of ideas, palpitation of the heart, timidity, trembling, dimness of sight, or giddiness, diseases of the head, throat, nose, or skin, affections of the liver, lungs, stomach, or bowels—those terrible disorders arising from the solitary vice of youth—and secret practices, blighting their most radiant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage impossible. Take one candid thought before it is too late. A week or month may place your case beyond the reach of hope. Our method of treatment will speedily and permanently cure the most obstinate case, and absolutely restore perfect manhood.
TO MIDDLE-AGED MEN.—There are many from the age of 30 to 60 who are troubled with frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight burning or smarting sensation, weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examination of the urinary deposits, a ropy sediment will be found, or the color will be a thin or milkish hue. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is a second stage of seminal weakness. We will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—We have a special department, thoroughly organized, and devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases of women. Every case consulting our specialists, whether by letter or in person, is given the most careful and considerate attention. Important cases (and we get few which have not baffled the skill of all the home physicians) have the benefit of a full council of skilled specialists. In treatment of diseases peculiar to females, [illegible] has been marked, over two-thirds of our [illegible] ladies, old, young, married, single, [illegible]. Our method is entirely free from objectionable features of the general practitioner, namely, "Local treatment." We seldom find it necessary. We prepare remedies, constitutional and local, as the case demands, and instruct ladies how to treat themselves.
MARRIAGE.—Married persons, or young men contemplating marriage, aware of physical weakness, loss of procreative powers, impotency, or any other disqualification, speedily restored.
PRIVATE DISEASES.—Blood Poison, Venereal Taint, Gleet, Stricture, Seminal Emissions, Loss of Sexual Power, Weakness of Sexual Organs, Want of Desire in Male or Female, whether from imprudent habits of youth or sexual habits of mature years, or any cause that debilitates the sexual functions, speedily and permanently cured. Consultation free and strictly confidential. Absolute cures guaranteed. Medicines sent free from observation to all parts of the United States.
EPILEPSY, OR FITS—Positively cured by a new and never-failing method. Testimonials furnished.

FREE EXAMINATION OF THE URINE.—Each person applying for medical treatment should send or bring from 2 to 4 ounces of urine (that passed first in the morning preferred), which will receive a careful chemical and microscopical examination, and if requested a written analysis will be given.
Persons ruined in health by unlearned pretenders, who keep trifling with them month after month, giving poisonous and injurious compounds, should apply immediately. Delays are dangerous.
WONDERFUL CURES Perfected in old cases which have been neglected or unskillfully treated. No experiments or failures. Parties treated by mail or express, but where possible, personal consultation is preferred. Curable cases guaranteed. No risks incurred.
Cases and correspondence confidential. Treatment sent C. O. D. to any part of U. S. List of 130 questions free. Address, with postage, DR. FRANCE, Nos. 38 and 40 W. Gay St., Columbus, O.

THE EDITOR WAS CALM.

Because the Kicker Was on a Live Wire and a Reporter on the Switch.

He was in a towering passion when he strode into the Truth-Teller office. It was evident that he was looking for trouble.

"My name is Sellers, sir, Sellers!" he exclaimed.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Sellers. Have a chair?" said the editor courteously.

"No, sir, I'll not have a chair!" thundered the stranger. "I've come down to clean out the office."

"Yes, yes," said the editor, calmly. "Will you stand a little to one side, please? You shut the light off from my desk."

The stranger was so surprised that he moved without thinking.

"That's right," said the editor, "stand right there. You can get a better s[illegible] at me from there. Would you mind my calling a reporter in? No intention of calling for help, I assure you, but you know what a sensation this affair will make, and I always try to have a reporter on hand when there's a tragedy. It makes a better story. With your permission."

He touched a bell and a young man appeared almost instantly.

"Mr. Warren," said the editor, "this is Mr. Sellers. I called him a thief, a monkey and an inspired idiot in this morning's paper, and he has come to clean out the office, especially this room. Get a good account of it and let it lead the paper, double-leaded. It ought to make a rattling story."

"See here, you've got nerve!" exclaimed the stranger.

"Not at all," replied the editor, "I simply understand my business, and am an enthusiast in it."

The stranger looked about him nervously and then said:

"Oh, well never mind: let the matter go. I didn't mind it much, and you're too nervy a man to be done up in cold blood."

He backed out of the door and hurried downstairs. Then the editor gave a sigh of relief and turned to the reporter.

"Was he standing on the plate?" he asked.

"Squarely on it."

"I thought I got him there. Was the battery working well?"

"Splendidly."

"And you had your hand on the switch?"

"Yes, sir."

"You could have shocked him?"

"If he had moved I'd have made him think he was struck by lightning."

"These electric appliances are great things," said the editor, as he leaned back in his chair, "but I was nervous just the same. I'll have the plate made larger and the switch put on my desk."—N. Y. Recorder.

A SPORTING HOLIDAY.

Shade of one who fell at Cold Harbor—Whither away, mortal youth, on this bright Decoration day morning—to drop a tear and a wreath on the grave of some departed patriot?

Fin-de-siecle Youth—Tear nothing! I'm going to take part in a century road run. But if more of our fellows don't get in than those from the other bike club I may condescend to shed a weep or two. Go back to the tomb, old man! Decoration day has become the great national sporting day. This generation has no time for sentiment.

Shade—Alas! that it should be so. A generation without gratitude, without memory and without reverence! Was it for these we died?—Buffalo Express.
